

VICTIM'S ANGER AT PROPOSAL TO SWITCH OFF CAMERA SYSTEM

Cannock Chase Council has to decide on a raft of cutbacks

A COUNCILLOR who worked tirelessly to bring CCTV to Cannock after she was a victim of crime has hit out against her authority's plan to axe the cameras.

Labour councillor Maureen Freeman was harassed by a man, who was banned from contacting her and ordered to pay £820 in costs and fines in 2012. She fought to get CCTV cameras installed and has now expressed her disappointment that the system has been included in proposed cuts.

Councillor Freeman said: "There are no decisions yet, but I fought very hard to get CCTV in Cannock Park because of the increase of anti-social behaviour, so for them to go potentially – although, as I say, potentially – I would be very, very disappointed.

They do have a big role to play in preventing anti-social behaviour and go a way in reducing it in town centres in particular.

"I have been in favour of them for quite some time at crime hotspots. I would say that CCTV, no matter where the cameras are, are extremely important in keeping people safe."

Under the cost-cutting measures, traders in Cannock's Market Hall would be expected to pay three per cent more for their pitches. One trader, who did not want to be named, said they felt the council was pressing ahead with plans without taking opinions from its tenants at the hall, including a proposal to increase the number of days it is open from three to four a week. "We are all struggling and, the town being like it is, I think they are a bit greedy," the trader said.

The impact of the cuts could stretch to footballers, who would be expected to foot an increase of 20 per cent in pitch hire, bringing in an extra £4,000 for the council, it has predicted.

Another proposal would see the end of planting floral displays in Cannock, Rugeley and Hednesford, to save £12,000 a year.

Chris Flood, from Norton Canes Flower Club, said: "I think it's radically wrong."

Another proposal would mean Christmas lights paid for by the district council this year could be the last, although Hednesford Town Council has said it is likely to be able to pick up the tab there from 2017 onwards.

Council considers rise in car park fees and axe for CCTV HUGE CUTBACKS REVEALED IN FULL

THE closure of council offices, scrapping all public CCTV and rising car parking fees – the full scale of drastic council cuts to desperately save £1.6 million have been revealed and put out for the public to have their say.

Cannock Chase Council has repeatedly warned of its dire financial situation in the wake of Rugeley Power Station closing early, taking almost £1m a year in business rates with it. Council leader George Adamson describes it as the 'most difficult position ever' to face the authority.

Now, following the launch of a public consultation, the full list of potential cuts has been revealed, while four public meetings to discuss the proposals have also been arranged for later this month.

The latest list of options includes axing CCTV to save £107,040 a year, closing the 'one-stop shop' reception desks in Hednesford and Rugeley to claw back £44,000 as well as axing senior posts such as the environmental health manager to save £87,000.

Car parking charges would increase – generating about £50,000 a year – for the first time in five years. Costs would increase by 10p an hour.

At the other end of the scale the council could stop applying for Green Flag awards for its parks to generate another £1,000 while switching to second-class mail only would plug another £8,000.

The Chronicle has previously reported that as part of the same process the authority has published other options to generate funds. If proposals are accepted, burial costs would increase and all town centre floral displays would end.

The council's leader Councillor George Adamson said: "The Council is facing the most difficult financial position ever. This is despite achieving £4.2m savings in recent years from partnerships with Stafford

By Nathan Briant

Borough Council, Wigan Leisure and Culture Trust and reductions in management and administration costs."

"The leader of the Conservative group on the council, Councillor Paul Snape, said: "I believe we need to make cuts. We need to do more to attract business in a different way for the future. We need to be less reliant on business rates and being innovative."

"We are looking at a new cemetery – we can keep it in house or give it to someone else to run. That could be a way of making it more cost-effective for residents. I am hoping that residents turn out in numbers to say what they want."

"We should be listening to what they are telling us. It is easy for me as a ward councillor to say Cannock West residents want this but the people of Cannock West might think differently."

All responses on the council's questionnaire and online must be submitted by November 6. Those results will go towards shaping the authority's draft budget, which will be delivered a month later. The chosen cuts will then be implemented next April.

'Clowns' warned over frightening behaviour

THE craze for dressing up as clowns and frightening bystanders could constitute an offence, Staffordshire Police have warned. "Their presence can actually intimidate those who come across such behaviour," a force spokesman said.

"We have a received a number of reports relating to this phenomenon.

"While we appreciate Halloween is just a short time away, scaring people – especially children and vulnerable people – in this way is completely unacceptable and could constitute an offence.

"Anyone who sees any suspicious clown activity, or who has been intimidated or upset by this behaviour, should call Staffordshire Police immediately on 101."

CRIME

Burglars take car keys from house

THIEVES broke into a house in Burntwood and grabbed car keys before taking two vehicles.

The keys to a white Ford Kuga and blue BMW 1 Series were stolen from the house in Derwent Grove. The crooks then took the vehicles off the drive. They also took a number of other items. The incident happened in the early hours of Saturday.

A police spokesperson said: "Please be on your guard and ensure properties are secure at all times and car keys securely stored." Anyone with any information is asked to call Staffordshire Police on 101 quoting incident number 197 of October 6.

Company in move to new £3m centre

Simon Mole – 'pleased'

A £3 MILLION distribution and customer centre in Cannock has been handed over a month ahead of schedule to a cable management manufacturer.

HellermannTyton is relocating from Aldridge to its new 63,000 sq ft warehouse at Kingswood Lakeside, after Birmingham-based Fusion Building Consultancy oversaw the development.

The consultancy was appointed by Coltham Developments to be employer's agent and principal designer for the scheme and, thanks to the early completion, HellermannTyton is expected to move in next month following extensive fitting-out works. Jon Churchley, commercial manager at HellermannTyton, said: "The development is essential for our growth into the next phase. We will have increased inventory space and a customer meeting facility, along with dedicated product training academy for both our staff and customers."

The warehouse will act as a main distribution and customer centre.

Simon Mole, project manager and quantity surveyor at Fusion, said: "The entire operation ran very smoothly from beginning to handover and we are pleased to deliver an exceptional facility for a global brand." The development received forward funding from Custodian Capital and assistance from the Stoke-on-Trent and Staffordshire LEP Growing Places fund, which assists firms with schemes such as buying or constructing new buildings, refurbishing existing premises, improving access or introducing environmental improvements.

The fund is designed to boost economic activity in Stoke-on-Trent and Staffordshire, promoting the delivery of jobs and housing and addressing infrastructure and site constraints by offering firms interest-free or low-rate loans.

Restaurants are rated some of the cleanest

SUPER clean restaurants in the Cannock Chase district are among the most hygienic in the country, it has been revealed.

The district is ranked in the top 10 across the UK for hygiene inspections – with 520 premises out of 874 boasting a five-star rating.

The National Food Hygiene Rating Scheme scores businesses that serve food between zero and five, with the former meaning urgent improvement is necessary and the latter meaning the establishment is 'very good'.

Some 99 per cent of dining spots were rated generally satisfactory, good or very good.

And Cannock Chase does not have a single establishment with a rating of zero – compared with dozens in the Black Country.

In comparison, 152 businesses in neighbouring Walsall were given a rating of one, compared to eight premises in Cannock Chase.

Standards

Six out of the 874 establishments in Cannock Chase were given a rating of two, meaning 860 have at least a 'generally satisfactory' hygiene.

Of these, some 604 – 69 per cent – have ratings of four or five meaning they are 'good' or 'very good'.

Councillor Muriel Davis, health and well-being portfolio leader for Cannock Chase Council, said: "This is testament to the good work and efforts of our officers and the vast majority of responsible businesses who try hard to ensure the correct procedures are being followed and that all hygiene standards meet legal requirements."

One of those to be praised for its hygiene with its maximum score was Bridgtown Chippy in North Street.

Anthelo Kristo, the owner of the chip shop, said: "We took over the chip shop in 2014 and at that time it had a 3 rating.

"We appreciate the time that Cannock Chase Council has given us to offer advice."

Others to receive a rating of five in Cannock Chase include the Village Cafe in Chads Moor and the KFC in East Cannock Road, Hednesford.

Hygiene inspection results for the area can be found at www.food.gov.uk

Builder's help for Scouts and Guides

Reagan Smith, aged six, Ethan Pile, eight, Leah Abnett, 13, Riley Smith, 10, and Paul Tittle, of Cameron Homes

A NEW outdoor activity area which will mean Scouts and Guides can camp next to their centre in Great Wyrley has been given a boost by a building business.

Cameron Homes, based in Chasetown, has donated £1,000 worth of materials to enable the project at the Great Wyrley Scout and Guide Centre in Walsall Road to be completed. The site will include seating, a wood store, timber chopping area and space for camping.

Scout group leader Gerry Wilson said: "Parents and leaders are working hard to transform an overgrown piece of land into an activity area where the 200 young people who use the Scout and Guide centre can take part in more outdoor pursuits."

"Cameron Homes generously agreed to purchase the materials we needed such as decking boards, fence posts, paving slabs, roof materials and bark mulch at a cost of £1,000. This is the 100th year of Scouting in Cannock Chase so it seemed right to mark this milestone with such an exciting project."

Paul Tittle, a quantity surveyor at Cameron Homes, said that as a family-owned business, the firm was always keen to get involved in community-based projects which helped young people. "This is an excellent initiative which we are delighted to support and we hope the activity area is well used by the hundreds of Scouts and Guides in Great Wyrley," he said.

Repeal Bill over Brexit 'must come with clarity'

A STAFFORDSHIRE business leader has called for clarity in light of the Prime Minister's announcement of a Great Repeal Bill.

Theresa May said the bill would end EU law's primacy in the UK by removing the European Communities Act 1972 from the statute book.

Chris Plant, boss of Cannock Chase's Chamber of Commerce, said: "Businesses need day-one certainty on the rules and regulations they will face when the UK exits the European Union."

"A stable regulatory framework – not immediate disruption and change – is important at a time of transition and business uncertainty."

"Since businesses have already incurred the costs of adjustment and adaptation, existing EU rules should be maintained, with more thorough reviews over the fullness of time."

Last week the Prime Minister declared the UK will 'make our own decisions' on immigration.

The Prime Minister has said the UK will begin the formal Brexit negotiation process by the end of March 2017.

Mr Plant added: "For most businesses, getting Brexit right is far more important than doing it quickly."

● Staffordshire businesses can still access funding from a £1 million pot to help them grow and succeed. The Chambers of Commerce have been supporting businesses through the Regional Growth Fund (RGF) since August 2013. Call 01782 202222 or email jobsandgrowth@staffordshirechambers.co.uk

Churches boost harvest appeal

CANNOCK people have been making sacrifices to raise money to help communities across the world grow enough food.

Churchgoers in the district last year raised £1,417 and hope to do even better this year to raise money for Catholic aid agency CAFOD's harvest appeal.

The annual fundraising campaign is this year focused on families in the South American country of Bolivia whose crops and livelihoods have been impacted by extreme weather.

Julia Hood, CAFOD's representative for Cannock, said: "Harvest fast days are a great way of bringing people together and raising an incredible amount of money to help others, so we'd like to say a huge thanks to the parishioners in Cannock for their generosity."

Woman injured as two cars collide

A WOMAN in her 20s was taken to hospital with chest pains after a two-car crash shut a road in Great Wyrley.

The cars collided at the junction of Walsall Road and Norton Lane at about 5.20pm on Thursday, and the road was closed until about 9pm.

Air quality monitoring continues at fire farm

SMALL pockets of combustion have remained at the site of a large waste fire which ignited around a month ago.

Firefighters and environmental officers have been on site at Oak Tree Farm in Slitting Mill since early September when a blaze involving more than 700 tonnes rubbish got out of control.

Sacks of soil have since been used to cap the heap while the levels of smoke, which had been billowing heavily from the site for days after, has now reduced significantly.

Air quality tests confirmed that there is no risk to public health following concerns that asbestos had been burned at the farm.

Adam Lines, environment manager with the Environment Agency, said: "We are also contacting local waste carriers who may have used the site in the past asking them to take waste to alternative legal waste sites."

"We are continuing to work with partners to carry out any necessary monitoring of the area now and in the future."

Cannock Chase Council, Staffordshire County Council and Staffordshire Fire and Rescue Service have been regularly monitoring the site to ensure it remains safe.

Daily air monitoring results continue to be constantly low and are published on Cannock Chase Council's website at www.cannockchasedc.gov.uk/slittingmill

Cancer care data prompts pledge

HEALTH bosses have said they are committed to improving cancer care after performance figures were released by NHS England.

The data showed less than half of patients covered by the Cannock Chase Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) were given early diagnosis, defined as being before the tumour has begun to spread.

Figures for the Stafford and Surrounds CCG showed treatment was not started on more than a quarter of patients within the 62-day government target of being diagnosed.

Guy Cochrane, spokesman for the CCGs, said: "We are aware of the latest results and would like to re-state our commitment to delivering the best possible services for people."

£15m remembrance centre about to open

An artist's impression of the centre

A NEW £15.7 million remembrance centre at the National Memorial Arboretum will be unveiled next week.

The facility, which will help to inform half a million visitors a year, will be open to the public on Friday, October 21.

"Featuring three new exhibition galleries, a larger restaurant and shop, separate coffee shop and a beautiful cloistered courtyard with garden, the new centre will transform the experience of our many visitors," a spokesman for the Arboretum said. "At the heart of our new Remembrance Centre is a fascinating, interactive exhibition Landscapes of Life providing a preview of the Arboretum and an introduction to the concept of remembrance and why it is an important human need spanning thousands of years."

With fully immersive audio visual displays, hands-on interactives, artistic interpretation and the opportunity for visitors to share their experiences, it's the perfect start to a visit here."

The facilities are being provided after a major fundraising campaign, launched by the Duke of Cambridge, along with donations from Staffordshire County Council and the Heritage Lottery Fund.

The Ministry of Defence and The Royal British Legion will host an event at the National Memorial Arboretum on November 6 to commemorate 60 years since the ceasefire was announced in the Suez Canal Zone.

During the proceedings, the 450 British military casualties from 1951 to 1956 will be remembered. Ticket applications are welcomed from all who have a personal connection with the operations.

Medication concerns over death of wife, 67

A HUSBAND has raised concerns over the medication given to his wife, who died from pneumonia after originally being taken to hospital for a leg fracture.

Gillian Grube, of Market Place, Penkridge, died on February 11 after being taken to the Royal Stoke University Hospital for treatment having suffered a fall at home.

An inquest in Cannock heard that Mrs Grube, who had suffered from Crohn's disease for 35 years, had fallen off a chair while her husband, Michael, was out of the front room.

Mr Grube returned after hearing a thud to see his wife lying on the floor in considerable pain. She was taken to hospital where it was confirmed she had suffered a fracture in her left leg.

Mr Grube expressed concern during the inquest that a combination of tramadol, tamazepam and codeine given to his wife, who died aged 67, during her stay in hospital, contributed to her death.

He said the medication caused her to feel so drowsy that she could not take part in physiotherapy sessions, which doctors admitted could have led to a build-up of fluid on her lungs.

Drugs

A letter written by Mr Grube, read out by coroner's officer Simon Webster during the hearing, said: "Mr Grube feels his wife would still be alive today if she hadn't suffered the fracture to her leg. Concerns regarding prescription medication given to her were raised with hospital staff due to the fact she had suffered with Crohn's for a long time and had a poor immune system."

"He believes she should not have taken the drugs she was prescribed together."

Doctors said Mrs Grube had been prescribed the drugs before she was in hospital but admitted they could have spoken with her family before administering the medicine.

Mr Ashique Ali, an orthopaedic consultant with the University Hospitals of North Midlands Trust, said: "With hindsight, the administering of these drugs could have been discussed with the family but it is difficult to talk about these things so early on."

"Our main discussion centred on whether to operate or not."

Coroner Margaret Jones delivered a verdict that Mrs Grube died as a result of an accident.

Gaynor Kmiolek, a volunteer at Cats Whiskers Rescue in Great Wyrley, with Neville Chilton, an IT manager at Midland Expressway Ltd

Donation will help tackle 'a cat crisis'

STAFF from M6 Toll operator Midland Expressway Ltd (MEL) presented a cheque for £500 to a cat rescue centre in Great Wyrley.

The cheque was handed to Malcolm Haynes, founder of Cats Whiskers Rescue, which is currently tackling 'a cat crisis' - rescuing the increasing number of stray cats and covering the cost for them to be neutered.

The centre, run from Malcolm's back garden, has been established for almost 10 years, and a registered charity for the past six.

Malcolm said: "We are so grateful. Our costs to neuter stray cats are ever increasing, with the cost of neutering 25 stray cats costing over £1,000."

Neville Chilton, an IT manager at MEL, said: "My family and I first met Malcolm and his team of volunteers earlier in the year when we rehomed one of his cats. Having learned more about the centre and the amount of money and dedication required to run it, it was my pleasure to put forward the suggestion to provide them with funding to our Social Committee."

NEWS IN BRIEF

'Gardener' cons elderly woman

MONEY was stolen from a vulnerable elderly woman in Great Wyrley.

A man approached the woman, who is in her 80s, offering to do some gardening work and followed her into her house where he stole a purse and more than £200 in cash from the bedroom.

No work was undertaken. He then left in a truck-style vehicle with a white cab and open rear with plywood sides. He is described as white and tanned and in his 30s and of medium build with thin light brown hair combed back flat. The incident happened at midday last Wednesday.

Raiders scared off by family's dogs

WOULD-BE thieves tried to break into a house in Cannock before being scared away by the family's dogs.

The property in Johnson Road was targeted in the early hours of Thursday when an attempt was made to force the lock on the back door and windows.

The dogs scared off the offenders after they failed to get into the house.

Staffordshire Police have urged residents to be on their guard and report any suspicious activity on 101.

End of the road for another bus service

ANOTHER bus route in Staffordshire has stopped for the final time - following a raft of changes brought in by operator Arriva last month.

The company closed its Stafford base in September and moved all operations to Cannock. And on Friday evening, it stopped running its 19/20 service from Cannock to Heath Hayes.

"We already have the 61 route in place, which has been operating since September 3 and covers parts of the 19/20 route," Arriva said.

Street collection

LOCAL volunteers took to the streets of Cannock town centre on September 24 to raise funds for Compassion in World Farming. Donations totalled £126.57 which will go towards helping the animal welfare organisation to continue to campaign for improved farming standards.

THE BEST OF PETER RHODES

TWO institutions. Both depend on public donations. Both help people let down by government agencies. So why is Children in Need a national treasure of which we are proud, but food banks are a national disgrace of which we are ashamed?

TV switches from programmes to adverts with no warning. One moment we were wincing in horror at the young sheep with a huge, shiny, prolapsed rectum in The Yorkshire Vet (C5), the next we were invited to try a gourmet break in a Yorkshire hotel, featuring tender, glistening burgers. I bet they didn't get many inquiries.

ALL the political parties are pledged to build more homes. So where will they go? I drove across to Cambridge this week and then back via Bedford. It was like one vast new housing estate. I lost count of the number of part-built streets, gobbling up meadows which have been farmed for a thousand years. The irony is that having destroyed all vestiges of Saxon farming, developers choose names such as Saxon Way.

WHOPPER of the week as the nation's emails crashed yet again: "Yahoo! Will be right back. Our engineers are working quickly to resolve the issue." Depends how you define "quickly," doesn't it?

I BET there is not a woman in the land who doesn't not understand why Diane James stood down as the leader of Ukip only 18 days after being elected. It is an impossible position. If you fail, you will be denounced and vilified. If you succeed, you'll have to have another kiss from Nigel Farage.

I LOVE the latest suggestion from Whitehall that restaurants serving huge pudding portions should be "named and shamed" in the fight against obesity. But if eateries decided to reduce pudding portions for the common good, what would happen next? We have seen it with punters who avoid high prices for pub and club booze by "preloading" beforehand with a bottle or two of vodka. I can imagine serious noshrers stuffing themselves with pudding before even arriving at the restaurant. Behold, a new social evil, pre-loading on spotted dick.

MANGLED metaphors in Birmingham. If you believe everything you heard from Conservative leaders, the way ahead is going to be a stormy sea and a rough ride with many bumps in the road and a bit of a rollercoaster. After the Tory Conference should we be travelling by boat, car or fairground ride? I think I'll be packing my trusty pogo-stick, just in case the grapes of wrath come home to roost.

Charity fundraising is a piece of cake

SHOPPERS in Cannock were treated to a feast of cakes that would put Great British Bake Off contestants to shame in aid of a charity event.

Cannock Shopping Centre marked the world's biggest coffee morning, organised by Macmillan Cancer Support, by serving up cupcakes, muffins and more to customers.

Shoppers could also browse a pop-up selection of independent local traders selling a range of products including homemade gifts, and organic beauty items, with the shopping centre donating the traders' rent to Macmillan. The event raised £571.58 for Macmillan, beating previous years' totals.

Natal Chapman, centre manager, said: "Macmillan is a cause close to many of our customers' hearts, and our coffee morning has become an established event on the Cannock calendar."

● Wolgarston High School in Penkridge hosted two coffee mornings for Macmillan. More than 160 cakes and cookies were sold, raising £139.70. Student helpers on the day were Charlotte Addison, Kiera Hope, Davina Dickinson, Matthew Wright, Lauren Hayward, Ellie Fletcher, Katie Riley, Millie Rose Hyde-Jones, Olivia Markey, Sophie Moseley, Niamh Callaghan and Daniel Beales.

● A coffee morning at St Peter's Primary School in Hednesford raised £250 in total for Macmillan. Headteacher Samantha Price said: "In the last few years we have had a number of members of our school community who have been diagnosed with the disease and, I'm pleased to say, have come through the other end."

Mill Green knock-on effect 'is £20m loss'

By Nathan Briant

NEARLY £20 million could be lost by Walsall traders every year once the new Mill Green designer outlet village is up and running, it has been predicted.

A study into the potential impact has estimated that 4.6 per cent of trade – £19.69m – could be lost from Walsall town centre in 2018.

The warning comes as more than a quarter of Walsall's shops are standing empty, placing it in the top 10 worst towns for vacant units in the country.

The proportion of vacant units has increased over the last year, with 27.6 per cent of them currently classified as empty, according to a study from Local Data Company, although Walsall Council disputes the figures.

Last year that figure was 26.2 per cent. The borough has also seen the total number of shops out of action rise to the sixth worst in the country – up from ninth in 2015.

Approval

Mill Green, which developers have said is 'the biggest development of its kind in the West Midlands' will bring 1,200 jobs when it opens.

A report prepared for Walsall Council's planning committee shows the authority has been told Willenhall could be set to lose 3.4 per cent of its trade – worth about £890,000. Darlaston could lose one per cent – worth £680,000 – and Bloxwich 0.3 per cent or £210,000.

The new Cannock centre will have 130 designer outlet stores and restaurants and 2,000 parking spaces.

Outline plans for the centre were submitted in February 2015 and Cannock Chase Council approved them in November. But the proposal then had to get the approval from central government, which was given by the then Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, Greg Clark.

Developers will also invest £150,000 in Cannock town centre to help minimise the impact Mill Green could have on shops there.

30 cars an hour break speed limit

MORE than 30 motorists an hour are breaking the speed limit on the main road into Cannock from the M6.

Wedges Mills Community Speedwatch members say they are clocking up to 35 cars every hour driving too fast on the A4601 Wolverhampton Road.

Armed with a speed gun recording drivers travelling over 30mph towards Longford Island, the volunteers, led by former collision investigator Alan Smith, aged 72, pitched up on the route near the Chase Gate pub on four occasions in late August and early September.

Mr Smith said: "Our main concerns are the speed cars are going, the vibrations this is causing to the houses, the noise and, of course, the obvious safety issues."

"It is ridiculous down here. There is going to be a serious accident soon." The group members say their findings are only the tip of the iceberg because they cannot record every driver. They are managing to log the details of the first car if a convoy of traffic goes by and have monitored vehicles heading in one direction only.

Mr Smith estimates that out of up to 700 vehicles each hour at busy times, more than 500 are breaking the speed limit. The group has now launched a campaign, backed by 120 neighbours, calling on authorities to bring in a number of safety measures. Mr Smith said: "The A4601 is considered by the county [council] to be a safe road. The residents tell of different experiences."

Mark Deaville, cabinet member for transport and highways at Staffordshire County Council, said: "We are aware of the group's findings and will be looking to see if anything needs to be done to address speeding."

Campaigner on pension age aims to form group

A CANNOCK woman was among hundreds who protested in Birmingham over a fairer pension deal – and is now looking to set up a local campaign group.

The demonstration, by Waspi – Women Against State Pension Inequality – took place outside the ICC during the Conservative Party conference last week.

The group is fighting changes made to the state pension age for women born on or after April 1951.

Under the changes, brought in by the Conservative government, a women's state pension age has risen from 60 to 65 – the same as men's.

The group believes these were implemented without the chance to make alternative plans and argue their retirement plans have been scuppered.

The campaign began with five women last year. There are now 110 groups across the UK.

Petitions have been signed to supporting Tory MPs and were being handed in to the House of Commons this week.

Lyn Tranah, who attended last week's demonstration in the second city, is now keen on setting up a local group.

She said she was looking for women from Cannock and surrounding areas, including Rugeley, Hednesford, Wolverhampton and Stafford who don't have a local group.

Anyone wishing to get involved can email Mrs Tranah at waspiladies@gmail.com

£1k bill for selling cars from home

A HEATH HAYES man who was told to stop selling vehicles from his house but continued to do so has been fined.

John Birch, aged 55, of Badgers Way, was served with a notice by Cannock Chase Council to stop operating a car sales business from his home on September 7, 2015. But the council found he had continued to advertise the cars in Auto Trader between April 27 and July 28 this year.

He pleaded guilty at Newcastle-Under-Lyme Magistrates Court to not complying with an enforcement notice and was fined £500 and ordered to pay £500 costs and a £50 victim surcharge.

Economic development and planning leader Councillor Gordon Alcott said: "Cannock Chase Council will prosecute those residents who don't comply with enforcement notices."

Severn Trent picks up home builders' award

SEVERN Trent won the utility of the year award from the Home Builders' Federation of England and Wales.

Steve Betteridge, head of developer services at Severn Trent, said: "We're absolutely delighted to have taken this title."

Necklaces are stolen in street on same day

A THIEF grabbed necklaces from three women in broad daylight on the same day.

Police are searching for a van driver who chased the offender and who could help officers in their investigation.

The identical thefts happened in Burntwood, Lichfield and Norton Canes.

In each incident, the offender ran up to his victim, grabbed a necklace from around her neck and then made off.

A suspect was subsequently detained and arrested on suspicion of the thefts. In the Lichfield incident, witnesses told of a van that stopped at the scene and the driver got out and gave chase.

The driver returned to the scene shortly after, saying that he had seen the robbery suspect jump into a waiting Audi.

The incidents happened on September 29.

Staffordshire Police spokesperson George Bailey said: "We would, obviously, really like to identify the driver of the courier van, as his statement would be key evidence in the case against the suspect we arrested in connection with all three incidents.

"If you know the courier driver, or indeed you are he, please call Staffordshire Police on 101 and quote 368 of 29 September.

"You can also call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111, where information left can neither be recorded nor traced."

Survey on how to look after Chase

PEOPLE are being invited to have their say on the best ways to look after Cannock Chase's natural habitat.

Cannock Chase Country Park, Bevin's Birches and the adjoining land are much loved by visitors and tranquil areas to walk dogs, ride bikes or horses and explore the wildlife. But, left alone, this unique landscape which makes Cannock Chase so special will become overgrown, affecting views, routes, wildlife and heritage.

Now, a project by the county council, RSPB and Natural England is exploring options on how the area can be protected. People can have their say at a drop-in event at Cannock Chase Visitor Centre, Marquis Drive, on Sunday from 11am to 5pm or at www.managingcannockchase.co.uk

M6 closed as car destroyed by fire

A STRETCH of the M6 was closed after a car was destroyed by fire.

The blaze between junctions 12 and 13 northbound near Cannock at 10.51am on Thursday involved a yellow Audi. No-one was injured.

Donation sees Cadets sail into new era

Sea Cadets in the new Trinity 500 at their Blithfield Reservoir sailing base

STAFFORD and Rugeley Sea Cadet Unit has received a £3,400 donation from The People's Postcode Lottery towards purchasing a new rowing boat.

The cash has enabled the outfit to buy a custom-designed Trinity 500, which means leaders can provide rowing training to young people from the local community and progress them through a syllabus designed alongside British Rowing.

Commanding Officer Lieutenant (SCC) Lee Townsend RMR said: "We are delighted with the very generous donation from The People's Postcode Lottery. It's a dream come true for cadets."

Stafford and Rugeley Sea Cadet Unit opened in 1939.

In 1946 the club moved to its current location and next year it celebrates its 77th anniversary.

The unit has supported thousands of young people in Stafford, Rugeley, Cannock and surrounding areas in learning nautical skills.

Membership currently stands at 45 cadets and nine volunteers but the unit is looking for more. Whether at sea or on land, Sea Cadets offers young people aged between 10 and 18 an environment where they can find confidence and inspiration, through nautical adventure.

Across the UK, 14,000 young people are challenging themselves and learning new skills based on the customs and traditions of the Royal Navy to give them the best possible head start in life.

The unit is open every Tuesday and Friday from 7pm to 9.30pm. For further information about the unit visit www.sea-cadets.org/staffordrugeley

RSPCA appeal on dog found dumped in field

THE RSPCA is investigating after an emaciated dog in an 'appalling' condition was dumped in a field in Cannock.

The female Staffordshire bull terrier, which has been named Ruby, weighs 8kg instead of the 20kg she should be.

As well as being extremely underweight, Ruby had infected open sores on her back legs and an ulcerated eye which is so infected that it now needs removing. She was found by a member of the public on Thursday in a field opposite the One Stop store in Longford Road.

RSPCA inspector Laura Bryant, who is investigating the case, said: "Ruby was in the most appalling condition when she was found, and clearly had been for some time.

"She is just skin and bone and sadly is going to lose an eye due to an ulcer which has not been treated.

"The open sores on her behind look extremely painful and should have been treated a very long time ago.

"Ruby has clearly been very uncomfortable for a while but she is now on pain relief and is slowly recovering.

"It is hard to believe why someone would dump Ruby, as she is absolutely adorable and is very friendly.

"We are very keen to find out who dumped Ruby, and we urge anyone who has any information to contact us in complete confidence on 0300 123 8018."

Ruby is now recovering while in the RSPCA's care. It is hoped that she will be available for rehoming soon once she has recovered.

The RSPCA is the only animal welfare charity prosecuting those who harm animals, and in 2015 it secured 1,781 convictions.

Officers rescue the animals most in need and offer them safety and treatment at the charity's centres until they can be rehomed or released.

The RSPCA relies on public donations. To assist its inspectors in carrying out its vital work, text HELP to 78866 to give £3.

Village gets its first defibrillator

Gavin Williamson hands over a defibrillator to Emma Farrington at Great Wyrley Community Centre

SOUTH Staffordshire MP Gavin Williamson was on hand to present the first potentially life-saving defibrillator in Great Wyrley.

Wyrley Defibrillators - a group dedicated to getting the life-saving devices installed in the village - have so far raised more than £1,500 since they set up in June.

They are looking to raise a further £7,500 and get five of the devices attached to buildings across the area, with the first one installed at Great Wyrley Community Centre.

Automated external defibrillators (AEDs) deliver electric currents for people suffering cardiac dysrhythmias and are designed to be easy to use.

Ron Myatt from Wyrley Defibrillators said: "In Great Wyrley, we have a strong voluntary community with a number of us being members of various groups.

"We knew of defibrillators and could not recall where any were installed to support the Great Wyrley community."

Money has so far been raised by groups including Landwood District Voluntary Help Centre, Great Wyrley Local History Society, the Walk for Health group and Harrison's crib team and local employer Aggreko.

Contact Ron Myatt on 01922 413 849 or email ron.myatt@sky.com for details on how to donate.

NEWS IN BRIEF

£75,000 diggers stolen from firm

TWO large diggers worth £75,000 were stolen from a builders merchants in Rugeley.

The Hitachi excavators were taken from Tipplers in Power Station Road. One of the machines that was stolen weighs five tons and the other 22 tons. It is thought a large low loader would have been needed to take them away.

The excavators were stolen between 5pm on Monday last week and 8.30am the following day. Anyone with any information is asked to contact Staffordshire Police on 101 quoting incident number 135 of October 4.

Ex-England star at firm's open days

A BURNTWOOD business has unveiled its new steel slitting line.

Steel Processing Midlands has invested more than £1.5 million in the equipment and an extension to its works at Burntwood Business Park to accommodate further growth.

Open days were held to show off the new processing facility to customers and suppliers. More than 50 people attended on each day, and former England goalkeeper Peter Shilton was the guest speaker at both.

The slitting line has been supplied by Wolverhampton's Georg UK.

Theatre to host Addams Family

BROWNHILLS Musical Theatre Company is bringing a new musical comedy based on cartoonist Charles Addams's macabre characters to Cannock next month.

The Addams Family is being staged at the Prince of Wales Theatre from November 2 to 5.

There are performances each day at 7.30pm and a Saturday matinee at 2.30pm.

Tickets are £15 and can be booked online at www.positickets.co.uk

Employees to celebrate firm's 10th anniversary

MORE than 1,000 employees of Cannock-based Briggs Equipment, and their families, will be joined by colleagues from across the Atlantic as the company celebrates its 10th anniversary while raising money for Teenage Cancer Trust.

The firm's 1,200 UK employees have been invited, and many will be joining the celebrations. The senior executive team from parent company Sammons Enterprises Inc will also be attending from the United States.

Colourful language for the 'too close' car

HUMBLE pie time. A few weeks ago I said the reason modern technology was so boring was down to the fact that anything that served any useful purpose had already been invented, and that supposedly new developments were mostly either gimmicks or variations on an old theme.

But then along come those crazy South Koreans to prove me wrong, with the invention we have all been waiting for.

Kiss On The Road is a set of paint nodules which have been fitted to a little Hyundai hatchback, which sprays messages onto the road behind.

Its creators suggest that eventually it could be used to spray road safety messages, such as alerting drivers behind to a crash ahead, but to begin with it is most likely to be used by the advertising industry.

They're missing a trick. If I bought one, it wouldn't be to sell anything, or to tell the people behind me to wear a seatbelt or inform them that tiredness kills. But it would be deployed every time somebody in a mid-range German saloon car feels the need to drive within six inches of my back bumper on the motorway flashing their headlights.

I think "back off" painted in large letters on the bonnet would communicate the message beautifully...

IMAGINE you are elderly or vulnerable, or maybe a mother out with two young children. How would you feel if some juvenile delinquent in a creepy clown's mask jumped out brandishing a plastic knife?

This latest craze has already led to a 13-year-old boy being arrested in West Bromwich, and I don't suppose he will be the last.

What is it with these people? Can't they just stick to skulking in darkened bedrooms slaying zombies on their computers, or whatever it is they do?

Sooner or later one of them will come a cropper and pick on the wrong person, and my gut reaction is it would serve them right.

However, I bet they will be the first to go squealing to the law if anyone lays a finger on them. They will probably say it's a hate crime.

AM I the only one who is sick of hearing embittered EU supporters complaining that they don't know what Brexit looks like?

Surely that is the point. It is about the freedom to shape our nation, without interference from the former president of Luxembourg.

If the political establishment don't know what Brexit looks like, perhaps they should do what they are paid for and come up with some ideas. Then we will tell them whether we like it or not.

Night to celebrate heroes of conflict

A sum of £2,000 was raised as veterans relived some of their most traumatic experiences. JESSICA LABHART reports

IT was night of music, smiles and celebration, even though some of those in the crowd had gone through some of the most traumatic experiences of war.

Veterans from across the West Midlands came together to share their life-changing experiences of the conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq as part of a charity fundraiser for Help for Heroes. The night raised more than £2,000.

It revealed some of the harrowing experiences suffered by the veterans who are still on the road to recovery.

Scott Yarrington, aged 31, of Bloxwich was in the army in 2005, with the Irish Guards. He served in Iraq in 2007 and Afghanistan in 2010. Whilst in Afghanistan on December 29, 2010, he was in charge of searching for improvised explosive devices along a bridge area when he stepped on it, losing both his legs.

Transferred

Mr Yarrington said: "I just started screaming because the pain was hitting me. I woke up in the QE hospital in Birmingham."

He spent two months in the QE, before being transferred to Headley Court - the specialist defence medical rehabilitation centre near Surrey. At the start of May 2011 he met his now fiancée Rachel Andrews, aged 28, and the pair later had son Alfie, aged three, following IVF treatment.

He is now helping young cadets learn the ropes as part of the Mercian Regiment.

His inspirational story was one of many on the night.

Clive Smith, aged 31, who lives in Walsall, also stepped on an explosive device when he was in Afghanistan on October 13, 2010. He lost both legs. Despite being conscious

Guardsman Scott Yarrington, of Bloxwich

Clive Smith from Walsall

David Watson, of Birmingham throughout the ordeal, Sapper Smith's main concern was the wellbeing of his comrades, who rushed to his aid as he lay bleeding in the battlefield. Within 36 hours he was flown to Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Birmingham.

Mr Smith, a Wolves fan originally from Cannock, was later transferred to Headley Court and also spent time at the Battle Back Centre in Lilleshall. The centre, funded by the Royal British Legion, helps sick and wounded service personnel recover.

Since having artificial legs, he has competed in the men's hand bike time trial, IHB2 class, at the Invictus Games at the Olympic Park in London. At Molineux, he has presented the match ball and been named Championship fan of the month.

In 2012 he was chosen as the face of the Royal British Legion's National Poppy Appeal. Speaking of what it meant to be at the charity fundraiser, Mr Smith said: "I think it's important for us to come together like this to raise the profile of Help for Heroes and also to show people that there is life after serious injury."

Dave Watson, of Birmingham, aged 30, was in Afghanistan in 2010 when he was on patrol, tasked to find an improvised explosive device. He was the 50th man in a group of 53, and turned to help a fellow soldier who had fallen down. As he twisted to turn, he took a wrong step on to the explosive device. He lost both legs and his right forearm.

Mr Watson has since undergone extensive rehabilitation and has not let his injuries hold him back. After a £120,000 operation in Australia, funded by his compensation from the army, to give him high-quality prosthetic legs, he has completed 15 skydives, five abseils, and goes skiing and waterskiing. He is also a respected discus, shot put and javelin thrower. He is in training for both the Invictus Games and the Paralympic Games in 2020.

Event organiser Andy Sawyer said: "It was absolutely unbelievable, we raised £2,180."

"Half will go to Team Ditcher Big Battlefield Bike Ride 2017 in aid of Help the Heroes. We will and donating the other half to Veterans' Lifeline."

"It's not often that veterans have a chance to meet up and talk about their experiences, but also raise money for a good cause and ultimately, have a good time, so I'm really pleased with how everything has gone."

Veterans' Lifeline has been set up by former soldier Nick Perry, 41, of Liverpool who joined the army at 16 and served in Iraq and Afghanistan. He set up the charity to help veterans struggling with post-traumatic-stress and other issues to overcome their difficulties."

Council has its fill of boating pool

Topsoil is deposited in the boating pool at Chasewater after cleaning out the bird poo was deemed too expensive

Now – the once popular pool will shortly become just a memory

Then – the pool was a popular place for boating at Chasewater Country Park

Staffordshire County Council found that the valve which released the water from the boating pool into the reservoir was faulty

IT used to be a popular attraction for families who enjoyed nothing more than floating around on the water. But last week, work began on filling in the boating pool at Chasewater after Lichfield District Council granted permission earlier this year. The decision to fill in the pool was made after figures showed that cleaning out bird poo had become too expensive. Ducks and geese had been settling at the pool next to the Innovation Centre after visitors were stopped from feeding them near the edge of the reservoir. But as a result, the droppings built up in the pool, raising fears that it was damaging protected plant life in the connecting reservoir, so it was subsequently drained. Staffordshire County Council, which owns Chasewater, took over the management of the country park in 2014 and came across two problems with the boating pool. As well as the ducks, the valve which released the water from the pool into the reservoir was also faulty. The county council drained the pool to clean it out but said it would be too costly to do so on a regular basis.

8 All our towns need culture

THE Shire Hall Gallery is a nice place to go for exhibitions and a cup of tea and chat but lack of investment is threatening its future as well as the arts services.

It may not be a statutory responsibility to provide these, but any modern destination, like Stafford town centre, needs to have a visible cultural offer, or it just becomes a place to go shopping.

ROGER HOWIE
Birmingham

So, just how many suits?

THE recent article about the £55 billion white elephant known as HS2 stated that two thirds of the 27,000 jobs it will apparently create will be involved in its construction (September 29).

So can we assume that for every two people putting their back into building the thing, there will be a highly paid person in a suit looking over their shoulders?

MARK DE BANK
Burntwood

The answer to smelly bins is really simple

I ADDRESS this to Curious and anyone else struggling with the blue bin recycling instructions (September 29).

You should be washing out your dirty food containers before putting them in the blue bin. If you dispose of clean containers you won't need to wash the blue bin out quite so often.

I imagine your blue bin smells, is a health hazard and maggots love it!

DISGUSTED
Hednesford

THERE is a very simple solution to the problem of festering juices in your recycling bin. Wash and drain jars, tins etc before disposal.

This is what I have done for over 50 years and I never have a smelly bin. I hope you find this tip useful.

B DOWNES
Cannock

WOULDN'T it be much more sensible and hygienic to wash recycling items before putting them into your bins? I always have. There is then no smell or mess in your kitchen or bin area.

C MOSS
Rugeley

WHY doesn't he or she use their common sense and try washing and drying the recyclable items FIRST, before putting them in the blue bin?

That will save having dirty smelly bins to wash out. Simple, ain't it!

Reactionaries ignore the cause of defeats

PETER RHODES echoes the myth perpetuated by Labour reactionaries, that they cannot win an election without appealing to Tory voters (Chronicle, October 6).

The Conservative Party has only won one election in 20 years, and that with a 12-seat majority, appealing to less than a quarter of the electorate.

In the science of political economy, there is no middle ground. To hear the reactionaries talk, you would never guess they had lost the last two elections by attempting to mimic the Tories. And that they are not only politically incompetent, but also financially, leaving the party £25 million in debt.

Jeremy Corbyn has transformed the party in just one year, despite their worst efforts, by wiping out the debt and tripling the membership.

He is energising the labour and trade union movement, by offering alternative policies to the Tories.

On the road to losses

I THINK your headline "2m more use M6 Toll" is a bit misleading (Chronicle, September 29). It should read "Toll loses another £18.5 million". This is when there are major roadworks on the M6. When the M6 gets upgraded, the traffic on the toll road should reduce, meaning less income.

I wonder why the toll road is looking for a buyer? Anyone fancy a nice little earner? Err, maybe not.

Get the measure of county's road signs

DRIVERS in Staffordshire may be concerned to learn that the county council has a low opinion of their ability to distinguish between metric and imperial measures.

When asked why it does not state imperial as well as metric in public notices the leader of the council, Philip Atkins, repeating what he had been told by the director of strategy, governance and change, said it would not be helpful.

Apparently, the notices should contain no imperial or extraneous information and should be kept as simple and clear as possible. Fine. However, Mr Atkins (and the director) may wish to check how many accidents have resulted from confusion because of the mixture of metric and imperial signs specifying the height of low bridges.

Pensioners don't deserve this misplaced criticism

APPARENTLY we pensioners are doing too well. We are told we are living the life of Riley while the young are struggling to live.

Without going into too much detail, when we were young we had none of the things that youngsters have to today.

An old man once said to me there is a difference between your wants and your needs - the problem is today this does not apply. The word expects comes to mind.

Pensioners make a large contribution to society. They are carers, childminders and charity workers, which they do for love. Get off our backs. We have worked hard for the little we have.

Helping hands clear up rubbish at beauty spot

A BEAUTY spot has been transformed after two skips' worth of dumped rubbish were cleaned with the help of volunteers.

Polystyrene housing insulation, concrete blocks, car tyres, metal fencing, chairs and litter were left strewn on the site, between Burntwood and Brownhills.

Council workers, who believe the mess was created by youths in the area stealing from a local building site, have reported the incident to the police.

The clear-up took two rangers from Staffordshire County Council and members from the Norton Bog volunteer group hours to clean up, filling 60 black bin bags, five builder bags and two skips.

Upset

The group usually goes out on a Sunday morning in a conservation capacity as more than three quarters of the Chasewater site is classified as a Site of Special Scientific Interest.

Shelia Harding, Norton Canes Parish Councillor, said: "Unfortunately we do get instances like this occasionally and it does set us back."

"It does upset you to see people not care about leaving a mess. The volunteers work very hard."

County Councillor Gill Heath said: "I am appalled at the amount of rubbish that was dumped at Chasewater."

"The rangers spent hours clearing the mess to ensure the park remains safe and pleasant for the many people that enjoy Chasewater on a daily basis."

"It's disappointing when a thoughtless minority seek to spoil this enjoyment, but thanks to our rangers, the rubbish was removed quickly and the area made safe."

Businesses can play it safe

BUSINESS owners in Staffordshire are being offered an opportunity to shape policing in their area.

Staffordshire Police and Crime Commissioner Matthew Ellis is inviting business people from the county to join their local Safer Neighbourhood Panel.

The panels help to hold police teams to account and look at community safety issues that need to be raised.

Application forms are available for people who are interested in joining a panel, including those who work in the business or the voluntary sectors.

Mr Ellis said: "This is a real opportunity for business people to play a part in holding those responsible for policing in their area to account, and I'd urge them to get involved. I make no apology for believing that truly local policing, and the public playing a part in influencing that, is vital."

Anyone interested in joining should go to www.staffordshire-pcc.gov.uk/safer-neighbourhood-panels/

Cloudy2Clear Announce Trusted Trader Partnership

Consumer champions Which? have now joined the thousands of customers who recognise that Cloudy2Clear Windows really are a business that you can TRUST. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has received the coveted 'Which Trusted Trader' status after going through a rigorous accreditation process entirely focussed on customer service.

Group Managing Director Marcus McGee believes that Which? have endorsed Cloudy2Clear's long standing company policy of delivering the highest standards possible at all times. 'Our service is simple. If your double glazing has misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 5 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Whilst a number of tradespeople perhaps don't focus on customer care as much as they should do, we make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle.

Locally Cloudy2Clear service Cannock & the surrounding areas and manager Brian Stanley agrees that this approach is a major factor in his success. 'The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated as both my customers and, obviously a body as nationally important as Which? now recognise.'

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Brian a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

Restaurant's anniversary celebrations are hot stuff

Milestone – Saleem Bagh owner Angur Miah and some of his staff mark the Cannock restaurant's silver anniversary

THINGS are hotting up for an Indian restaurant which marked its opening 25 years ago by bringing a live elephant to Cannock.

The opening of Saleem Bagh in 1991 was an extravagant affair which brought the town to a standstill, as the chairman of Cannock Chase Council at the time, Roy Bagguley, rode in on the elephant. Since then it has attracted a host of awards.

Now, the owners are marking the silver anniversary of the Queens Square restaurant with a string of celebrations involving bhangra dancers and live music. The first celebration event took place this month, with another party organised for October 21.

The restaurant will run its third event on October 28 when it hosts Staffordshire's Hottest Curry Evening.

Owner Angur Miah, who has run the restaurant since its opening, said: "We like to celebrate properly, as we did with our opening."

The restaurant still employs the same chef who started his journey with Saleem Bagh all those years ago – Taymus Ali, who specialises in a nine-course banquet.

Drone's eye view of town at night

Cannock by night is captured in Steve Martin's photograph on Old photos from Hednesford, Chads Moor and Cannock

THIS stunning image of Cannock town centre from the sky at night-time was captured by a reader.

Steve Martin took the photograph using a drone high above the town when the shops were shut and the roads were silent.

Street lights of Ringway light up the town as flickers of residential estates can be seen in the distance towards Cannock Chase and Stafford.

Mr Martin said: "The pictures were taken with a DJI Phantom 4 drone."

"Night and day pictures in towns are usually taken on a Sunday afternoon or evenings when it's quiet."

"My aerial pictures are shared on the Old photos from Hednesford, Chads Moor and Cannock site."

"Members are spread around the globe and they enjoy reminiscing about the area and seeing the changes that have occurred over the years," he added.

"I think that aerial photos are a great way to see large areas of our towns and the surrounding region."

Steve has posted an array of aerial photographs across Cannock and Hednesford in the past.

Court in the act as trial is recreated

Cast members Steve Morris, Seamus McMahon and Roger Butters in The true story of the Trial of Sarah Westwood

A THEATRE group is reconstructing the trial of Sarah Westwood from Burntwood - the last woman to be handed the death sentence in Stafford.

Westwood was hanged in 1844 and, more than 170 years later, Creative Arts Theatre is reconstructing the trial in the very court where the original hearing took place.

The true story of the Trial of Sarah Westwood will be performed in The Shire Hall Gallery No1 Court today (Thursday) and tomorrow.

Westwood was sentenced to death after being found guilty of killing her husband John by putting arsenic in his evening meal of gruel, bread and meat on November 9, 1843.

Her actions came after she was believed to have been having an affair with lodger Samuel Phillips.

Ken Tillet, who plays Sergeant Yardley of the defence counsel, said: "Sarah Westwood was the last woman to be hanged in Stafford - the court that we're doing it in is the very court that she was tried in 1843.

"Even the dialogue in the play is the same dialogue from the court case.

"As a matter of interest, we have had descendants from the family of Sarah Westwood from all those years ago come forward to buy tickets and they're coming to watch the production. The whole thing has been super because it's living history and the case actually took place. What we are saying was actually said."

Westwood was executed by George Smith, Stafford's hangman, on January 13, 1844. Her last words were reported as: "It's hard to die for a thing one's innocent of."

Tickets for the production are from £6.50 for standard seating, £8 in the well of the court and £9 in the jury seats. To book, go to the Shire Hall Gallery reception or call 01785 278345.

Dates set for budget consultation meetings

CANNOCK Chase Council has announced the dates for its public consultation meetings being held this month.

These sessions aim to seek the opinions and views of residents, businesses and community groups on the future of council services.

It follows the announcement that the council faces a funding deficit that peaks at £2.15 million in 2018-19 and the launch of the council's financial recovery plan.

Council officers and elected members will be in attendance at the meetings to discuss the authority's position, the proposed options and suggestions from the public.

Feedback via the budget survey will also be available. The dates of the meetings are as follows:

October 18, 6.30pm – Mansfield House, 40 Market Street, Rugeley

October 19, midday – Ballroom, Cannock Chase Council Offices

October 20, 6.30pm – Ballroom, Cannock Chase Council Offices

October 25, 6.30pm – The Aquarius, Hednesford

The financial recovery plan provides the background information and potential savings options that council officers have identified.

The savings options total £2.1m per annum and are in excess of the £1.6m minimum saving requirement. This means that a meaningful consultation can take place on the options to achieve a saving of £1.6m.

An animated video has also been produced to inform residents of the situation. This can be viewed at www.cannockchasedc.gov.uk/council/financial-information

The six-week consultation asks for opinions on options to increase income, reduce services and explore further shared services with other local authorities

The six-week consultation asks for opinions on options to increase income, reduce services and explore further shared services with other local authorities.

The survey can also be completed via the council's website, in person or on paper. Closing date for responses is November 6, after which the results of this consultation will feed into a draft budget for consultation in December, to be implemented from April 2017.

Councillor George Adamson, leader of the council said: "The council is facing the most difficult financial position ever."

"This is despite achieving £4.2m savings in recent years from partnerships with Stafford Borough Council, Wigan Leisure and Culture Trust and reductions in management and administration costs. The complete removal of government grant funding by 2019, the loss of business rates from the closure of Rugeley Power Station and the probable loss of £400,000 from the New Homes Bonus scheme combined, means that the council now has to make some difficult decisions to balance the books from the next financial year.

"I am determined that this process will be open, transparent and a genuine consultation on which options the council should select. I encourage everybody to get involved in this consultation and let us know your views."

"It will give local people the chance to have their say in the future of Cannock Chase and the district council and these public meetings are a vital part of this process."

Stephen, left, and Peter get used to their new appearance

A CANNOCK firm says it exceeded all expectations by raising more than £1,900 for the Teenage Cancer Trust.

City Plumbing staged an open day at its Eastern Way headquarters, with two employees, Peter Carroll and Stephen Silvester, undergoing a close shave along with other fundraising activities.

Around 40 customers, family and friends witnessed the main event, the head shave, and organiser Stuart Chapman said he was pleased with how the day went.

"We had a steady footfall throughout the day with many customers choosing to take part in the fundraising events," he added.

"The favourite was the wet-sponge throwing at staff in the stocks. This quickly escalated into throwing buckets of water rather than sponges.

"The day has raised over £1,900 to date which surpassed our original expectations."

It takes the total amount which has been raised by City Plumbing Supplies branches across the West Midlands to more than £40,000 for the Teenage Cancer Trust.

Abuse victims deserve better support – chief

Official launch for antlers

Project manager Dave Lucas proudly stands under the rehung antlers on the railway bridge in Rugeley

A REINSTATED Rugeley landmark will be officially unveiled this week-end following painstaking research.

Having been missing for many years, the 'antlers' that had adorned the railway bridge at the end of Horse Fair have finally been installed.

"After being restored and sporting two new lanterns, they have been rehung where they belong," project manager Dave Lucas said.

The town was gifted the antlers in the 19th Century by the railway company, and were later converted from being gas powered to 'the new electricity'.

They were removed in about 1975. Then at the end of September last year, Mr Lucas began his quest to locate the antlers.

"I started a poll on Facebook to sound people out, and as most people wanted to see the antlers back in Rugeley, I decided to start a project to get them rehung on the bridge," he added.

Now, there is to be a service of dedication conducted by Fr David Evans on Saturday, October 15, at 11am. Everyone is welcome to attend.

For more information about the project, look for 'Rugeley's Historic Antlers' on Facebook or email rugeleyshistoricantlers@sky.com

VICTIMS of domestic abuse in Staffordshire deserve better, and consistent, support that they are currently getting, according to the county's police and crime commissioner Matthew Ellis.

Closer co-operation between councils and other agencies is needed to make sure people affected by domestic abuse receive a consistent and quality service, no matter where they live in the county, he said.

Mr Ellis was speaking after he opened a multi-agency conference in Stafford marking the final stages of work towards a new approach to domestic abuse support services across the county.

The idea of more effective and more formalised joint working between agencies was set out by Mr Ellis in his Safer, Fairer, United Communities Strategy in 2014.

He said he believed the work by agencies to reach this point in domestic abuse services could be the most important so far.

Goals

The new approach involves clearly aligned goals and bringing together all budgets to reduce administrative costs and spend more of the available money on the support services themselves.

The PCC is providing £1.5 million of funding over the next three years. Staffordshire County Council is providing £1.8m over three years towards the delivery of the new policy, while Stoke-on-Trent City Council will provide just over £1.5m over three years.

Gill Heath, cabinet member for communities at Staffordshire County Council, said: "Domestic abuse is a terrible crime and tackling it continues to be a top priority. We recognise the significant impact it has on not only victims but their wider families. This new way of working will see us working much more closely with our partners to provide a better, more consistent approach to tackling the issue and supporting victims."

Paintings capture all the splendour of Sightseeing

FROM Scotland to Dudley, and Cornwall to Cannock Chase – an exhibition based on the places that a woman has visited is being showcased in Staffordshire.

Jean Walker's Sightseeing exhibition featuring 27 oil paintings from her collection is on show at the Museum of Cannock Chase.

The 68-year-old, who lives in Cannock, has held a number of exhibitions at the museum and is delighted with the reception she has received so far.

Jean said: "The exhibition is called Sightseeing and is based on places that I've been to. I've had a few exhibitions at the Museum of Cannock Chase and usually have one there every four years. They are all oil paintings.

"I've been painting for the last 20 years. It takes me out of the everyday of mundane life and it allows you to travel anywhere and daydream. It's very therapeutic.

Remember

"I've been working on this current collection for about two years, and to read all the positive comments in the guest book is brilliant."

She has also had a number of paintings on show at Walsall Manor Hospital, where she sells them and donates 20 per cent of the takings to support the services there. Jean, who works from home in her studio, added: "I've always been into art ever since as far as I can remember. I used to sketch pictures from the Express & Star when I was a little kid," she said.

"But then you get married and have a family and don't have the time. But when my kids left home I had more time to paint.

"It can still sometimes be difficult to fit it in because I've got two granddaughters. But I do it when I can."

The exhibition runs until tomorrow.

touching hearts, changing lives

A potted history of ceramics

Landor Society

HEATHER Brown was the guest speaker at the September meeting on 'ceramics in Armitage and Handsacre'.

This was not only about the famous factory in the village, Armitage Shanks.

She talked about the presence of clay in the vicinity and that it was recorded that clay pipes were made at Armitage. There were also a number of small brickworks in the village. A small pottery company was in existence by 1817 and by 1851 this had begun to produce sanitary ware.

In 1867 Edward Johns, a congregational minister from Armitage, bought the business and founded the Edward Johns and Co Sanitary Pottery, later to become Armitage Ware, the internationally renowned company. As many will know this is why the toilet is known as the "John" in America.

Armitage Park, a mid 18th century house built for Nathaniel Lister in 1839, was purchased by the widow of Josiah Spode III who lived there with her son Josiah IV who converted to Catholicism.

On his death he left the house to the Dominican Order who built a chapel and priory, they named it Hawksyard Priory. The house was used as a school and was known as Spode House. Spode put a window in the church as a dedication to his mother.

The talk inspired lots of discussion with local members chatting about their own reminiscences of Armitage and Handsacre.

Fascinating life and times of Evita told

Hint at local link to Unknown Warrior

MEMBERS were both entertained and moved by Barry Picken and his talk entitled 'Red Flowers and a Bag of Bones'.

Barry told how everyone came to wear poppies on Armistice Day and members were fascinated to learn that it all started with a woman named Moina Michael at the New York YMCA conference in 1918. Moina campaigned for the poppy to be recognised as a symbol of the end of the Great War and the idea began to spread around all the major countries of the old empire - expect for the UK.

Many were surprised to learn that the UK was one of the last countries to adopt the symbol, in 1923.

The second part of Barry's talk covered the story of the grave of the Unknown Warrior at Westminster Abbey. The idea for the grave started with Reverend David Railton who felt there was a need to commemorate all the lives lost and unidentified on the battlefield.

SI Cannock & District

Four bodies were originally exhumed from different French battlefields and the Unknown Warrior was selected from among these. His body, along with soil from France and Belgium was buried at Westminster Abbey on 11 November 1920.

Barry pointed out that the South Staffordshire Regiment was one of the first to fight on the Front in the Great War and given the time of death of the Unknown Warrior it is possible that he originated from our local area.

Chase Terrace Ladies Club

HAZEL Griffiths gave a talk at the September 22 on the life and times of Eva Peron.

She said even her date of birth was a bit of a mystery as the birth certificate she presented at her marriage had a different date to the one that can be sourced in the archives.

As she was illegitimate it is thought she was trying to hide this by pretending that her father had died when she was young.

She was born on May 7 1919 as Maria Eva Duarte into a family of three other siblings and was the second wife of Argentine president Juan Peron.

She served as the first lady of Argentina from 1946 until her death in 1952 at just 33 from cervical cancer and was affectionately known as Evita.

She made her last public appearance in June 1952 at her husband's second inauguration. She was given a funeral fit for a head of state.

Her life has continued to fascinate people and was made into a musical by Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber in 1979. Madonna took the lead role in a successful film version.

Speaker proves life is funny

PRESIDENT Margaret Beddard welcomed members and visitors Val and Pam and it was lovely to see Em Barker back after recovering from his broken ankle.

Since the July meeting, 11 members enjoyed a performance of Shakespeare's As You Like It at Wightwick Manor.

August also saw 48 members and friends take part in a summer saunter on the Chase, planned and led by John Parton, followed by an excellent meal at The Greyhound at Burston. Speaker Pat Hall, from Derbyshire, proved 'Life is Funny' with her humorous tales of life in the hamlet of Stanton with its Grade 2 listed bus shelter and two buses a week into Ashbourne.

Shreshill WI

She entertained with her own poems and amusing epitaphs and typographical errors.

Youngsters urged to try for canal angling title

YOUNG people are being encouraged to pit their wits in a competition in Penkridge aimed at attracting a new generation of anglers onto the nation's canals.

The National Junior Canal Championship is organised by the charity that cares for 2,000 miles of the nation's historic waterways – the Canal & River Trust – and the Angling Trust.

The competition is open to anyone aged between 10 and 16 with the winner taking home the top trophy and being crowned national champion.

The match is taking place on October 29 on the Staffordshire & Worcester Canal where youngsters will be able to gain inspiration from some of the best anglers in the country as the National Canal Pairs Championship is also taking place on the canal on the same day.

John Ellis, national fisheries and angling manager for the Canal & River Trust, said: "This is the third year that we've run the Junior Championship, and the two previous events have been very successful.

Needed

"With some of the country's best senior anglers also competing on that day, it's a brilliant opportunity for young people to pick up some tips, show us what they can do and maybe even walk away as the National Junior Canal Angling Champion."

David Kent, national chair of competitions at the Angling Trust, said: "It is vital that we all do whatever is needed to get more young people fishing.

"There are certainly not enough competitions yet catering for young aspiring match anglers, and this event takes us that one step closer."

The championship is free to enter with 50 spaces available. The closing date for entries is Friday, October 21. For more information contact the Angling Trust at corina.smith@anglingtrust.net or sandra.johnson@anglingtrust.net

Work starts on reviving beauty spot

Work begins at the Long Acres site near Hednesford Hills

WORK to breathe new life into a former beauty spot tarnished by rubble and debris has begun.

Cannock Chase Council's countryside services team is days into a project that will see the Long Acres site near Hednesford Hills transformed.

In years gone by, the site had been an open heath, with heather and an environment suitable for rare species. However, it was then covered in imported soil and building rubble, destroying its potential as a beauty spot. But with work now under way to bring underlying sand back to the surface, natural plants will be able to grow again. Councillor Paul Woodhead, who represents Hednesford South, said the work is a 'really positive' move for the area.

The project has been supported by Cannock business J Murphy and Sons, who have supplied an excavator and operator. The project should take around two years to complete.

Stock market con alert

RESIDENTS in Staffordshire have been lured into making lucrative bets on the stock market by fraudsters, police say.

Conmen are typically targeting people through social media sites and apps, promising guaranteed returns on their investments.

But the Binary Options Fraud, as it is referred to by authorities, is essentially the unregulated betting on financial markets as they rise and fall.

It could involve gambling on a company's stock price, the value of a currency or the value of commodities such as oil or gold, as to whether they will go up or down within a certain time-frame.

There are two outcomes – to win cash or nothing – which is why it is being referred to as a 'binary' fraud. At present, it is not regulated as an investment in the UK.

Staffordshire Police have confirmed that people in the county have fallen victim to fraudsters offering them guaranteed returns.

Police spokesman Ash Connor said: "Several residents have suffered at the hands of this fraud across Staffordshire, and all reported victims have been aged 50-plus."

Action Fraud has received more than 1,500 reports of this type of scam. The average lost by a victim is £20,000. In total it is estimated more than £30 million has been lost at Binary Options fraudsters.

Chief paves way for toll road to be nationalised

TRANSPORT Secretary Chris Grayling has paved the way for the M6 Toll to be nationalised, saying he was not 'philosophically opposed' to the idea.

He said that if the West Midlands Combined Authority wanted to buy the motorway, it could, but said there may be other infrastructure priorities. It came as South Staffordshire MP Gavin Williamson repeated calls for the road to be taken into public ownership.

Mr Grayling said: "I have no philosophical objection to the combined authority to purchase the road.

"We have to bear in mind, at a time when taxpayers' money is in short supply and we want to invest in infrastructure, are we better off spending the money on taking over something that is already there or investing in a new project?"

"The M6 Toll is an asset to the region, and I understand why people want to buy it, but there are other needs for infrastructure in the West Midlands too," he added.

The M6 Toll has been put up for sale by its owners

Congestion

The M6 Toll has been put up for sale by its owners with a reported price tag in excess of £1 billion.

Leaders from the West Midlands Combined Authority have already mooted the idea of taking over the toll road to alleviate congestion on the M6.

Mr Williamson, prior to his appointment as Chief Whip, said he had conversations with ministers to see if the road could be taken into public hands.

He said: "A new approach has to be taken to the M6 Toll which encourages people to use it.

"This would involve making it accessible and cheaper for people to use, which would provide a great benefit and significantly alleviate congestion on the M6 and access onto the M5." The 27-mile M6 Toll, from Cannock to Coleshill, is Britain's first pay-to-drive motorway. It costs £5.50 for cars and up to £11 for lorries.

A debt-restructuring process led to a consortium of 27 banks effectively taking ownership of the loss-making road from Midlands Expressway Ltd. It is now selling its equity stake.

Earlier this month it was revealed roadworks on the M6 have helped boost takings on the M6 Toll by more than £10 million and saw an extra two million customers.

In the short term the work meant a total of 17.4 million customers used the paid-for motorway during 2015 - up from 15.4 million the year before.

Gold delight at school's award for PE lessons

REDHILL Primary School in Chads-moor has achieved the Sainsbury's School Games Mark Gold Award for its dedication to physical education.

The award was given following a thorough assessment of the school's provision against a series of requirements by Cannock and Rugeley school games organiser Anthony Bunn.

The award is a government-led scheme to promote school sport following the funding given to all schools under the Sports Premium Initiative and is now an Ofsted requirement.

Meanwhile, a special group of Year 5 and 6 pupils have been trained as Sports Ambassadors to lead smaller groups of younger children, to ensure they are active at playtimes and lunchtimes.

Following a successful application to Awards for All, Redhill was recently awarded £10,000.

Other sports involvement at Redhill has included The Soccer Star Challenge in which each pupil in the school took it in turns to take up to five penalties into a special inflatable goal which uses a sensor to measure the speed of the shot.

Away from sport, Year 6 pupils from Redhill learned about being safer citizens by spending a day at the Safeside Centre in Nechells, Birmingham.

The Safeside complex is staffed entirely by volunteers and funded by the West Midlands emergency services.

Year 6 pupils at the school were visited by representatives from Staffordshire's to help them learn about challenging prejudice on Thursday.

Finally, pupils, parents and staff from Redhill enjoyed an evening at Wembley on Saturday to watch the football match between England and Malta.

Everyone then joined in the national anthems before taking their seats which, while it may not have been England's greatest performance Redhill's seats were in a perfect position to see both goals at close range.

Launch of new housing provider

Sarah Boden, centre, and the new executive team, left, Jan Goode, Peter Donovan, Steve Collins and Les Clarke

A NEW housing provider pledging to build homes for communities in Staffordshire and Shropshire has been officially launched.

Housing Plus Group, formed by a merger between Severnside Housing in Shropshire and South Staffordshire-based Housing Plus, will employ around 600 people locally and have a turnover of more than £60 million. The group, which also includes Care

Plus, Severn Homes, AWE and Property Plus, has 25,000 customers and owns 12,000 properties.

Chief executive Sarah Boden said: "The need for housing has never been greater. Our challenge is to provide the homes our communities need."

The Group will continue to deliver landlord services and property repairs locally, from their operational centres in South Staffordshire and Shropshire.

Council at festival

CANNOCK Chase Council is to be a partner of The Staffordshire Business Festival, organised by the county's Chambers of Commerce.

The two-week festival will include more than 60 events across the county and runs from November 7 to 18 with the aim to 'facilitate better engagement between companies, organisations and business communities across Staffordshire'.

Cannock Chase Council is holding two free events during the festival.

Pastries, Prospects and Patter at The Moathouse in Acton Trussell on November 8 is dedicated to supporting business growth in Cannock Chase and South Staffordshire.

It will be a chance for businesses to discover all current funding opportunities available and make new contacts.

The second is an event at the Cannock Chase Enterprise Centre on November 18 called Looking to Start a Business.

Councillor Gordon Alcott, economic development and planning portfolio leader, said "We are proud to be involved in the Staffordshire Business Festival 2016. During the festival we are hosting two events; our headline event at The Moathouse will include guest speaker, author Dale Stafford."

"All of these events are free and a great networking opportunity for local businesses." For information on the events visit staffordshirebusinessfestival.co.uk/events-and-bookings

Music fans are in for a real treat

LICHFIELD Arts are offering a busy programme of music for folk and blues fans this autumn.

Performances from international touring acts and the best of local talent will feature at Lichfield Guildhall over the next few weeks.

October 14-16 will see the return of L2F – the Lichfield Festival of Folk – which is now in its fourth year.

On Sunday, October 23, there will be music from three acclaimed local acts. Well-regarded local performer Tom Woodman will take to the stage with his usual experimental soundscapes. The evening will feature The Mourning Suns and Robert Jackson.

The month closes with a bang on Sunday, October 30 with the internationally renowned Ben Poole Band whose fans include Jeff Beck and Richie Kotzen.

Tickets and details for all events are available at www.lichfieldarts.org.uk or the box office on 01543 262223.

Get free jab before flu takes hold

GP practices are gearing up for winter – and people in ‘at risk’ groups are being reminded to book their free flu jab.

Adults over 65, those with long-term health conditions, children aged two to seven, carers and pregnant women may all be eligible.

Every year, hundreds of thousands of people see their GP, and tens of thousands are hospitalised, because of flu.

Symptoms of flu can be debilitating and last for several weeks. It can lead to more serious complications like middle-ear infections in children and pneumonia or bronchitis for those with underlying health conditions – and in some cases it can be fatal.

Speaking on behalf of Cannock Chase, Stafford and Surrounds and South East Staffordshire and Seisdon Peninsula Clinical Commissioning Groups, Dr John James, chair of South East Staffordshire and Seisdon Peninsula CCG, said: “Flu is a highly contagious illness that spreads rapidly through the population.

“This year, more children are being vaccinated because we know that they can very easily pick up germs and spread them.

“My advice for anyone eligible for the free flu vaccination is to get it early before flu starts to circulate in the community.” For details visit www.nhs.uk/staywell

Plea to join register of cell donors

CANNOCK Chase Round Table is urging young men aged 16 to 30 to join the Anthony Nolan stem cell donor register.

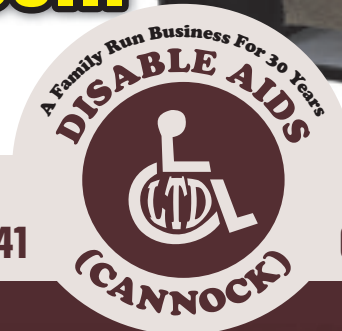

The scheme matches individuals willing to donate their blood stem cells or bone marrow to people with blood cancer and blood disorders who desperately need lifesaving transplants.

In 1986, Round Table clubs across the UK and Ireland were instrumental in adding 100,000 new names to the Anthony Nolan register and 30 years on, Round Table clubs are teaming up with the Anthony Nolan charity again, this time targeting young men.

Ann O’Leary, head of register development, said: “Our original collaboration with Round Table added a huge number of potential donors to the register.

“This time around we want to reach young men in particular, and we look forward to seeing how the campaign takes off in the Cannock Chase area.”

Hearing solutions work

Today's hearing technology has a lot more upsides than just looking stylish.

Wireless connectivity, supreme sound quality and clever speech detection are just some of the exciting features.

There's never been a better time to try it out. You'll be amazed.

Here are eight reasons for taking action:

- 1) You'll hear better – rediscover the sounds you've been missing.
- 2) Your family and friends won't have to repeat, shout or tolerate the TV being so loud.
- 3) Enjoy going to restaurants again – hearing technology focuses on speech and reduces background noise so you can follow conversations.
- 4) No more turning up the volume – wireless hearing solutions stream sound directly from your TV to your hearing instruments so everyone can listen at their preferred volume.
- 5) You'll boost your confidence – when you hear clearly, you'll be more self-assured at work, at home and in social situations.
- 6) You'll enjoy music again – Audibel hearing solutions are specifically engineered to enhance the enjoyment of music.
- 7) Treating hearing loss can positively impact your earning power.
- 8) No more faux pas – mishearing can lead to embarrassing situations.

If you're one of the millions of adults who haven't sought help for your hearing loss, you're missing out on plenty.

Audibel has helped thousands of people across the world to hear better. Right now you can trial the latest technology free for 30 days.

HS2 will free up space on motorways says Grayling

HS2 will help to free up space on the Midlands' congested motorways, the Transport Secretary has said.

Chris Grayling said the £55.7 billion project would create extra capacity for freight trains on the existing rail line, meaning that thousands of lorries could be taken off the region's roads.

He said train services from the Black Country to the rest of the region would also improve after the high-speed line was built.

He said: "One of the benefits that HS2 brings is to take trains off the West Coast Main Line to create more space for freight which will get more lorries off the road."

"If you are a regular user of the motorways in the West Midlands you definitely want to see fewer lorries on the roads and more freight on the railway."

Stations

"It's things like that which will bring benefits across the whole West Midlands. If you live in the Black Country, you want a prosperous West Midlands, and a project like HS2 will bring greater prosperity across the region – so if you live in the Black Country, you are still benefiting from HS2."

HS2, which will have new stations at Curzon Street near Birmingham city centre and at Birmingham Airport, will see journey times to London and Manchester from the second city slashed to 40 and 50 minutes respectively.

Mr Grayling added: "A lot of the focus on HS2 is about the savings in journey time from Leeds to London, or Manchester to London, but HS2 is a Birmingham project."

"Yes it gives Birmingham a quicker route into London but what it does is free up the railway lines across the

Transport Secretary Chris Grayling at the Birmingham site of the National College of High Speed Rail to see how construction work in progressing

West Midlands, for example the line to Coventry and Rugby. We have all been sat on Pendolinos behind slower local trains.

"What HS2 will do is get those express trains off and creating more space on the West Midlands rail network, which will make a real difference for national and local journeys."

"And we also have connectivity times to Leeds, Manchester, and Sheffield from Birmingham, and that will really help Birmingham link up with the north."

HS2 will cut through 45 miles of Staffordshire countryside and has been met by fierce opposition in the county with campaigners saying it will do 'irreversible damage'."

Mr Grayling also hinted that there would be no major announcement regarding Birmingham Airport in the Heathrow-Gatwick dispute over a new runway, but said it played an important part in the economy.

He said: "Birmingham Airport is a great airport and a very important part of the West Midlands economy, and I think it will grow and develop in its own right."

FOCUS ON RUGELEY

Voluntary group picks up the Queen's Award

RUGELEY-BASED Community Engagement Support Services (CESS) has been presented with the Queen's Award for Voluntary Service.

The presentation was made by the Queen's representative for Staffordshire, Vice Lord-Lieutenant Graham Stow CBE.

CESS was one of nine organisations across the county to receive this award which is presented to voluntary groups who regularly devote their time to helping in the community to improve the quality of life for others.

In less than five years, the charity has developed programmes to befriended the elderly and vulnerable, and offers a confidential signposting service to residents in the Rugeley, Brereton and Chase communities.

Achievements

It also works with youngsters in local primary schools on Christmas and summer activities, helps to run crime prevention workshops, and has established a successful weekly youth club for young people with learning difficulties.

In recognition of these achievements a gala event was hosted at the Rose Theatre, Rugeley, attended by the Vice Lord-Lieutenant, the High Sheriff of the county, and the chair of Staffordshire County Council, among others.

CESS has ambitious plans for the next five years but needs more volunteers to join the team.

Details and information can be obtained by contacting key worker Kitty Leech on 01889 358402 or 07734 596693 or by visiting Facebook.

CESS key worker Kitty Leech cuts the celebration cake with the help of CESS chair Councillor Dave Hancock, the Vice Lord-Lieutenant, Mr Graham Stow, right, watched by his wife and the High Sheriff of Staffordshire Colonel David Leigh

Lions join celebrations

RUGELEY & District Lions Club made a donation to the Cannock Chase District Scout Association as it celebrated 100 years of Scouting.

About 600 Scouts, Beavers and Cubs attended a camp at Shugborough where Lions members helped to run a 'milkshake stall'.

Later, three members of the Lions Club attended a dinner dance at Tillington Hall, Stafford, where they presented a cheque for £1,175 to the Staffordshire Search and Rescue Team to help with the purchase of essential equipment.

The cash came from proceeds from the Duck Race and Lion Hunt jointly run by both clubs.

Hairy Bikers will be in the Supertheatre

COMPETITION

Tuck in ready for the festive food season

THE flagship BBC Good Food Show returns to the Birmingham's NEC next month to set visitors up for the perfect festive, foodie season.

And you could be there. The organisers have teamed up with the Chronicle series to offer 20 readers the chance to win a pair of tickets.

Stock up on everything you need at the BBC Good Food Show, November 24-27. Enjoy live entertainment, great shopping, be inspired by top chefs and taste exciting new flavours.

Join a stellar line up of chefs and experts including Paul Hollywood, Mary Berry, Raymond Blanc and Michel Roux Jr, the Hairy Bikers and NEW this year, Nadiya Hussain as they bring their favourite seasonal dishes to life in the Supertheatre.

Plus pick up top tips for the Christmas season from James Martin and other guests on the Winter Kitchen.

Hear more from your culinary heroes in live interviews on the BBC Good Food Stage hosted by the BBC Good Food cookery team, and get your cook books signed by the authors themselves.

Stock up on all the treats and tip-ple you'll need to see you through the winter in the various shopping areas around the Show, including The Producers' Village, a huge speciality food market, The Bakes & Cakes Village and the Christmas Shopping Market.

Be inspired with ideas for festive entertaining, tempting tastes and great shopping from hundreds of regional and seasonal producers, plus plenty of festive spirit – the tastiest way to get warmed up for the season.

Festive tips from James Martin

HOW TO ENTER

To be in with a chance of winning a pair of tickets simply answer this question.

What is the Producers' Village?

Send answers on postcard with name, address and phone number to Good Food Show competition, Chronicle Editorial, 51-53 Queen Street, Wolverhampton, WV11. Closing date: Thursday, October 20.

Tickets are general admission only, excluding Saturday and excluding Supertheatre. Supertheatre tickets can be bought on the day for an additional £3, subject to availability. Not all celebrities appear on all days, see the website for details.

You better Beliebe – Justin is back

Justin Bieber is coming to Brum after his latest album, Purpose, hit the number one spot in more than 100 countries

IT'S the biggest pop music event of the year for thousands of Justin Bieber fans when the young Canadian mega-star brings his Purpose World Tour to Birmingham for three concerts. The Beliebers will be out in force with every night sold out, starting with his gigs at the Barclaycard

Arena in the city centre on Monday and Tuesday, followed next Monday, October 24, by his additional concert at the Genting Arena at the NEC. And it will mark the pop phenomenon's second, third and fourth gigs in the region after being one of the headliners at the summer's V Festival. His latest album, Purpose, hit the number one spot in more than 100 countries and is shattering records worldwide, including having 17 songs in the Billboard Hot 100 in one week. He also established a new Spotify record for global streaming with more than 200 million fans streaming Purpose, his sixth album. The 22-year-old singer and songwriter from Ontario also became the first artist, since Elvis Presley, to replace his own song as number one on the UK singles chart when Love Yourself replaced Sorry at the top of the chart.

Dickens of a great story

WELSH actor Jacob Ifan (pictured left), best known for his role as Jake Vickers in the BBC police drama series Cuffs, is to make his professional theatrical debut in a new adaptation of Charles Dickens' A Tale of Two Cities, at Wolverhampton Grand Theatre from Wednesday to Saturday (October 19-22). Joining Jacob is Joseph Timms, whose credits include Twelfth Night and Richard III (Donmar on Broadway). Shanaya Rafaat, who has appeared in Great Expectations at West Yorkshire Playhouse and King Lear at Shakespeare's Globe will also be in the cast along with National Theatre actor Sue Wallace and Royal Shakespeare Company actor Patrick Rome. Dickens considered his novel, A Tale of Two Cities, the best story he had written, interweaving one family's personal drama with the terror of the French Revolution. It is an epic story of love, sacrifice and redemption. This play version was first staged in Northampton in 2014, to great acclaim, and was director James Dacre's inaugural production at the theatre. It was adapted by Mike Poulton, who also adapted Wolf Hall for the RSC, and has an original score by Oscar-winning composer Rachel Portman. Dacre said: "Our decision along with Jenny King, producer of The Touring Consortium, to revisit the production during this year of elections, referendums and revolutions across the world is motivated by a shared belief that great historical dramas can play an important role in contemporary political conversations."

Civic ready to Blast Off at venue again

LEGENDARY Wolverhampton club night Blast Off! will return for two nights before the end of the year. On Saturday the indie night will celebrate 20 years since it was first staged and a Christmas party is planned for December 17, both at the Civic Hall. This weekend's anniversary event will also give folks an early view of the new-look Civic as the famous venue nears completion of its £14 million revamp. Originally planned to re-open with The Specials on November 11, the Civic will now be open throughout October, hosting the Magic of Motown on October 23, before work resumes in January.

Bostin' festival goes indoors at Robin 2

BOSTIN' Days was a Levellers tribute album featuring more than 30 artists to raise money for Devon Air Ambulance and in October 2015 the Bostin' Days Live Festival took place in Nuneaton where 20 of the acts played on two stages. In 2016 Bostin' Days 2 comes to Bilston's Robin 2 venue over Friday and Saturday (October 14 and 15) to bring the festival atmosphere without the need for waterproofs and wellies. Tomorrow night has Ferocious Dog, Black Tar Rivers Boozy Big Band and Star Botherer. On Saturday there is music on two stages from noon until The Leylines at 10pm. All for £30.

Naturalist ready to Packham in Grand NATURALIST Chris Packham is coming to Wolverhampton to give a talk on his career and conservation at the Grand Theatre. Tickets for Tadpoles Not Included on Monday at 7.30pm are on sale at £19.25 and £21.25. The Springwatch presenter will be sharing his experiences of close encounters with large hungry carnivores and giving his views about conservation. The talk is illustrated with his own photographs and video. The 55-year-old first found fame in the 1980s on The Really Wild Show. His autobiography Fingers in the Sparkle Jar: A Memoir was published in May.

7.00 Meet the Parents. New series. David Hyde, host of Holly Willoughby, which puts the love lives of singletons in the hands of the people they know best – their mum and dad.

8.00 The X Factor. The pressure is still on for the remaining contestants as the current contest's live stage continues. As was the case last week, each of the would-be stars must once again perform in front of judges Simon Cowell, who has the girls; Nicole Scherzinger, judge of the boys; and Holly Walsh, in charge of the groups, and Sharon Osbourne – who has the overs – as well as millions of viewers at home. Once this latest round of performances are out of the way, Dermot O'Leary entrusts the stars' fate to the show's fans, as the public vote opens.

10.00 The Jonathan Ross Show. The host is joined by Qi Qunfanyan Alar Davies, actor and comedian Richard H. Jones, and comedienne Morgana Robinson and the newly reunited Bros. Singer Rebecca Ferguson performs live.

Documentary catching up with London's Crossrail engineers less than two years after the project's existence was uncertain, the 14th-century Charterhouse plague pit. In an extraordinary turn of events, further work on the Liverpool Street station has revealed another burial ground, this time containing the remains of 'radical' radicals, rebels and outsiders. The Bedlam burial ground, which is thought to be the final resting place of nearly 20,000 people, was believed to be lost for around 300 years. With the excavation process under way, archaeologists and historians have been using new analysis techniques in conjunction with parish records to identify the names and life stories of those whose remains were found on-site. Their research reveals that people came from as far afield as Africa to work in the English capital, and sheds light on how racialised attitudes led to the city's most prolific killers. (R)

8.00 Britain's Ancient Tracks with Tony Robinson. New series. The historian explores the UK's network of ancient trackways and roads, which have been walked by hunters and traders over the course of the past 5,000 years.

9.00 8 Out of 10 Cats Does Countdown. Jimmy Carr hosts the comedy panel show's version of the words and numbers quiz, with Sean Lock, David Gedge and others joining up against guest captain Lee Mack and Bob Mortimer.

WEDNESDAY

A Wife's Suspicion, Channel 5, 3.15pm

A forensic investigator begins to suspect her new husband is the serial killer the police department has been hunting, putting her and her ex-boyfriend – a detective on the case – in danger. Crime drama, starring Andrea Roth. (2016)

THURSDAY

The Killing Game, Channel 5, 3.15pm

Premiere. A sculptor whose daughter was murdered receives phone calls from the killer, and tries to identify him before he strikes again. Mystery, with Laura Prepon and Ty Olsson. (2011)

FRIDAY

American Pie: The Wedding, ITV, 10.40pm

The friends from East Great Falls High reunite to celebrate Jim and Michelle's forthcoming wedding. Though reluctant to invite Stifler to their big day, the happy couple relent – but regret their decision when he plans a bachelor party on the same evening Jim is due to meet the in-laws. The third instalment in the comedy series, with Jason Biggs. (2003)

Taking control of his incredible new powers

As many know from offerings like Carrie, and Village of the Damned, adolescents with psychic powers go together as well as nitro and glycerine. Now there's another young man with a 'gift' set to add a chill to your pre-Halloween viewing.

This new drama comes from the pen of Paula Milne, the brains behind acclaimed offerings The Virgin Queen, The Politician's Husband, and Endgame. Her latest concerns a 17-year-old boy caught in the limbo between childhood and adulthood.

However, he's also trapped between the homes of his divorced parents Hannah (Katherine Kelly) and Edward (James Murray), each now remarried with new families.

Like most lads, he finds it difficult to process his feelings, so he tends to "act out". However, the protagonist known only as Him also has a supernatural power he inherited from his granddad.

Newcomer Fionn Whitehead plays the eponymous protagonist. He saw the audition posted on the National Youth Theatre website and applied for it. Although Fionn didn't hear anything, he was encouraged to apply for it again by a Youth Theatre director.

"So I re-applied and included a very clear photo in the email. The casting director Daniel Edwards called me within 10 minutes," he explains. "I put a lot of it down to him, he was incredible."

Fionn was working in a cafe at the time and acting in his free time for the love of it.

"Then when I got this role it blew it all out of the water. It was not what I was expecting at all. It was amazing."

Since leaving Coronation Street, co-star Katherine Kelly has been able to choose some of the best projects in British drama, from Mr Selfridge to new Dr Who spin-off, Class. So what was it that attracted her to Him?

"It was one of the most unique television scripts I'd read," she explains. "I thought, 'This is something really different, especially for mainstream television.' A current television show that could be something really special and that always excites me. Something that is domestic but not obvious."

She adds: "It is a modern family drama and I'm sure a lot of people will relate to that. And then in the telling of it this supernatural element comes out of something a lot of teenagers will relate to. It's not something put on top. It's cleverly done."

Carrying a series is a lot for a veteran actor, let alone a newcomer, and Katherine was impressed by Fionn's natural ability to juggle all the filming and acting elements thrown at him.

"The director was very aware that Fionn was carrying the show and that's a lot of pressure on somebody so young. And the only way you can do that is to have knowledge of what's going on around him."

"You wouldn't think it was his first job," she adds. "He took it all in his stride. He's a pro already."

The first episode focuses on Him having to deal with adolescence, failing grades, the repercussions of his parents' divorce, and his feelings towards his stepsister. Then there's the additional pressure of learning to control his telekinetic powers.

Fionn Whitehead stars in Him, Wednesday, ITV, 9pm

Paxman on Trump vs Clinton: Divided America

BBC1, 9pm

Considering he has referred to Democrat nominee Hillary Clinton a 'dull candidate' and Republican Donald Trump a 'clown', this one-off documentary by Jeremy Paxman should make interesting viewing. Clinton once held a double-digit lead over Trump, but this has been eroded by the billionaire, partly due to health concerns when she fainted in public after suffering from pneumonia. But with the Republican nominee prone to making gaffes and alienating key demographic groups, he has failed to close the gap on her fully. Here Paxman examines the US presidential race and how it is laying bare America's class divide. He also looks at the strengths and weaknesses of each individual and attempts to predict how the election of either candidate to the White House on November 8 will change not only America, but the world.

TUESDAY

Who's Spending Britain's Billions?

BBC2, 8pm

Thanks to our regular pay slips, we all know how much we are getting deducted each week or month. But as cash-strapped Britain continues to spend less on the public sector, do we really know where our taxes are being spent? Spending on schools, hospitals and foreign aid are well debated, but in this one-off documentary Jacques Peretti looks beyond these well-known budgets to a range of less-known projects, from virtual receptionists at Brent Civic Centre to night-vision goggles being used to spy on dog walkers in Staffordshire. He finds that local councils are signing contracts with management consultancy firms who can take a percentage of any savings they find and also reveals that hundreds of millions of taxpayers' pounds are spent on contracts are covered by confidential deals.

WEDNESDAY

Little British Isles with Alison Steadman

Channel 4, 8pm

TV's passion for celebrity travelogues shows little sign of abating, and in the latest beloved individual off on a tour is the woman who breathed life into classic dramas such as Abigail's Party, Life is Sweet and more recently Gavin and Stacey. A couple of years after fronting a compelling documentary about Shetland for ITV, she now she takes us on a tour of some of the small islands that surround Britain. And there's no shortage to choose from as 267 are inhabited. The actress has always been fascinated with idyllic island life since holidaying on the Isle of Man as a youngster. In the first episode, she travels to some of Scotland's windswept Inner Hebrides, and over the course of a week she explores the sparsely populated Gigha, Jura, Colonsay and Oronsay.

Stand Up to Cancer, Friday, Channel 4, 7pm

THURSDAY

Anne Robinson's Britain

BBC1, 8pm

Anne explores body image among the younger generation, investigating whether they are under more pressure to look good than ever before. She meets make-up addicts who spend more time getting ready for a night out than on the night itself, a couple of gym obsessives in pursuit of social media followers and a young man going under the knife in the hope that one day he will be 'perfect'. She also meets some people who could not care less about how they look – including naturists happy to let it all hang out.

FRIDAY

Stand Up to Cancer

Channel 4, 7pm

It's that time of year again when the main TV companies pull out all the stops for their chosen charities, and for the latest, Channel 4 have a feast of entertainment lined up. The aim, as you'll have gathered, is to persuade us to part with our cash, which will go towards finding a cure for cancer. Davina McCall, Alan Carr and Adam Hills guide us through the proceedings, and some famous faces will be giving their verdict on small screen gems in Celebrity Gogglebox. Hills returns for a special edition of The Last Leg, and a galaxy of stars, including Jamie Dornan, Michael Bublé, Britney Spears, Noel Gallagher, Olivia Colman, David Tennant, Jon Hamm and Eva Longoria have done their bit to ensure we keep that cash flooding in.

New start for Old India

After reading the good online reviews MARK SHIPP samples the fare at the Old India in St Anne's Road, Willenhall

THE area was home to a dog racing track years ago. Now Amirul Hoque is out of the traps to launch his restaurant career.

Amirul previously worked in the laundry business, but hopes to clean up after branching out to become owner of Old India, in St Anne's Road, Willenhall.

Formerly a takeaway business, Amirul has expanded the premises into a dine-in restaurant. And, while the take out business continues to be popular, he admits it has been hard to attract sit-down diners.

Parking is perhaps an issue. The restaurant is located in a predominantly residential area, with the odd new-builds adding to the traditional terraced homes, and a clamour for the on-road spots. Elsewhere, there are signs of commercial activity.

Limited

The Forge Tavern stands at one end of the road, adjacent to another derelict former pub and the restaurant faces green space belonging to St Anne's parish church.

A bargain supermarket is right next door, ideal, for picking up your alcoholic drinks before popping into the unlicensed Old India for your meal.

It was a quiet Tuesday night when my partner and I dined, so we were able to make use of what limited parking there is. As a takeaway this would not pose a problem as one could simply park up for just a few minutes, pick up their meal and go.

So, is this what is holding Old India back? The potential is there, and many people passed as we dined. There's plenty of competition in the town, but surely the proof is in the pudding, they say. Online reviews are favourable.

Inside it is well lit so you can actually see what you are eating

'Very clean and the warmth inside', 'made to feel welcome and comfortable', 'food delicious and waiters friendly' among the comments by satisfied diners. This was matched by our own experience.

Its description in a village magazine as 'quality Asian cuisine in a relaxed and friendly atmosphere' I can identify with.

Size isn't everything, and, although it's small inside, it's within its means. The overall decor is nothing spectacular, but it's certainly well lit and, from the the music played on a loop I still have one particular tune in my head.

Our waiter was courteous and was happy to explain to us what certain dishes consisted of. The menu itself threw up some tasty sounding dishes, like a Lahore special, taste of Jaf-long and chicken Rajastani.

There were plenty of non-Asian offerings, too, including scampi, chicken nuggets and

Takeaway has now expanded into a dine-in restaurant omelette. For starters I can heartily recommend the korahi kebab and whatever secret recipe sauce it was cooked in.

I opted for the moza mix as my main, taken from the chef's specials, and comprising Tandoori chicken, keema balls and spinach cooked with spicy onions in an exclusive sauce.

It was one of a number of fancies, but a wise choice as immediately the temperature hit me – and the taste was good, too.

A creamy makhani chicken – yawn! – was the choice of the less daring other half. She likes to compare with others, and though this may not have quite measured up to the fare dished up elsewhere, it did go down well.

Prices are reasonable, though, with set meals for two at £24, for example. And being able to take your own drinks always cuts the cost.

Old India is open from 5pm every day. To book a table, or for details of special offers, call 01902 630811.

Beware of terrible consequences

An alarming number of university students have admitted to using their mobile phones while behind the wheel, as well as speeding and drink driving.

According to a survey of 2,313 young Europeans commissioned by Ford, 43 per cent said they had sent texts while driving, while 38 per cent used apps and 36 per cent answered phone calls.

An additional 60 per cent said they break the speed limit, while 13 per cent had admitted to drink driving.

Comparatively, out of those who left school at 18, 45 per cent said they speed, nine per cent admitted to drink driving and 41 per cent claimed to use their phone behind the wheel.

These findings come in light of earlier research from the World Health Organisation and the European Road Safety Observatory that found that car crashes are the leading cause of death among young people.

Ford's survey findings were published as students across Europe enjoyed Freshers' Week, a week of partying to mark the start of university life for new undergraduate students.

Jim Graham, manager at Ford Driving Skills for Life, said: "Getting to university is an incredible achievement and it is also where many of us make some of our strongest friendships."

"But we want to make sure these are lifelong friendships and help to ensure that these young people can one day look back with pride on a successful graduation.

"It is crucial students, and all young people, understand the terrible consequences, both for themselves and for others, that taking risks behind the wheel can lead to."

Other risks university students said they would be tempted to take included driving a car overloaded with friends (48 per cent), driving with little or no sleep (75 per cent), riding in a car driven by someone they knew had been drinking (28 per cent).

It was found that 30 per cent of university students had admitted they had been in an accident, compared with 25 per cent of those who left school at the age of 18.

S-Cross is beefed up and much tastier now

By John Griffiths

The often overlooked Suzuki S-Cross was among the early players in the now burgeoning compact crossover sector.

In spite of competitive pricing and a high degree of competence, what it perhaps lacked was the chunky looks demanded by those who have sent SUV sales soaring by 27 per cent this year. The car was too car-like for that.

But that's all changed, with a heavily revamped model which offers more room, a range of new hi-tech and efficient engines and importantly perhaps – if first impressions do count – the stronger, bolder looks of a full-blown SUV.

The S-Cross now comes with two small and economical (but still punchy) turbocharged petrol engines: a 1.0 litre version from the new Baleno and the 1.4 from the acclaimed new Vitara S. The revamped 1.6 turbo diesel is more familiar, but now offers lower fuel consumption and CO2 emissions.

Unlike many of its rivals, all versions are available with Suzuki's proven ALLGRIP four wheel drive on demand system. Prices range from £14,999 for a two-wheel drive with the 1.0 Boosterjet engine, rising to £24,349 flagship model with 1.6 turbo diesel and four wheel drive. A six-speed twin clutch auto is an option with both petrol engines.

The new S-Cross is much more distinctively styled, with a bolder new grille, clam shell bonnet, broader 'shoulders' and new LED lights. It also has greater ground clearance.

Inside, it has been upgraded with some softer, more expensive-looking materials and a lot of new technology, including the central information/control screen. The cabin has plenty of room for five adults. Leg and headroom in the back is particularly generous for this class, with a roomy 430 litre boot (875 litres with the rear seatbacks folded down). The seating position is high, one of the attractions of an SUV. It means easier access, and great visibility.

A major attraction is that you can have a smooth, comfortable car with 4x4 capability that is still economical to run and environmentally friendly. That's thanks to the combination of new engines and Suzuki's ALLGRIP 4x4 system, both geared to efficiency and fuel saving.

I must admit that, although I was mightily impressed by the 1.0 Boosterjet engine in the Baleno I did wonder how such a small, three cylinder engine would cope with a heavier 4x4. The answer is perfectly, confirming my high opinion of it in the Baleno. The figures are some illustration: 0 to 62mph in 11 seconds, an official 56.4mpg average and a low 113g/km of CO2, but that's only part of the story.

The small, turbocharged petrol engine is becoming increasingly popular with manufacturers and drivers. It has the economy advantage of a small engine under light throttle, but put your foot down and you have the added oomph from the blower.

The Boosterjet produces 110bhp and 170Nm of torque. Compare that to a current, normally aspirated 1.0 litre engine from a major manufacturer – 60bhp and 95Nm.

The torque figure is, if anything, more important than bhp. It means the Boosterjet, and consequently the S-Cross, is responsive and flexible from low revs and it drives particularly smoothly and quietly without the noise and need for constant gearchanges we experience in a more traditional engine.

During a long test drive across A and B roads in North Wales, my test car averaged an impressive 49.7mpg. Driving it was a relaxed experience because it has the refinement of a car with a much bigger (and thirstier) car.

The 1.4 Boosterjet, of course, has more of everything. 140PS, 220Nm, a 0 to 62mph sprint time of 10.2 seconds and yet still manages better than 50mpg economy and CO2 emissions of 127g/km. It is both more powerful and more economical than the old 1.6 petrol engine it replaces.

Currently 76 per cent of all Suzuki's sold here go to private buyers, people spending their own money which says a lot for the brand.

But Suzuki is hoping to make a bigger impact on the fleet market with its 1.6 turbo diesel version of the S-Cross, with a special business-user specification, the SZ-T. With 120bhp and 320NM of torque it can average almost 69mpg and the lowest CO2 rating of the range – 106g/km – making it one of the most tax-efficient SUVs around.

The ALLGRIP system was pioneered in the original S-Cross and is a small, light weight replacement for more traditional four wheel drive systems, aiding economy.

All models come with seven airbags and an electronic stability system, and have a five star EuroNCAP safety rating.

All models, get alloy wheels, air con, cruise control, stereo radio/CD player and Bluetooth connectivity, electric windows, electrically heated and adjustable door mirrors, hill hold control, automatic engine stop/start and multi-function information display.

The S-Cross's bold new 'face' will probably be the first thing many potential buyers notice, but competence as well as beauty isn't just skin deep.

Understated but Alpina has superb performance

By Jack Evans

Alpina has a long-standing reputation for taking all the key cars from BMW's line-up and tweaking them in special ways.

With the B4 Biturbo, the German tuning company has brought in a BMW 435i convertible, taken away the standard car's single turbocharger and replaced it with two instead. That results in a car which produces an amount of power within striking distance of a BMW M4 Cabrio but with more torque too.

Of course, the car also gets Alpina's styling tweaks. There's the standard 20-inch multi spoke alloy wheels and aerodynamic kit. There's also a rather nice four-pipe Akropovic exhaust system at the back, to let you know that this isn't any old BMW convertible.

Alpinas have always been able to manage the look of a car that is understated, but shows sporting intent too. The B4 Biturbo convertible continues this. There's the previously mentioned bodykit, which includes a front splitter. You'll also find Alpina pin striping along the flanks of the car. This may not be to everyone's taste, but in our eyes, it looks fantastic. The large multi-spoke wheels finish the exterior look, and a ducktail spoiler at the rear looks the part too.

Inside, it'll be familiar to anyone who has seen or driven a current-generation 3 Series. BMW's excellent infotainment system remains, controlled by the i-drive rotary selector. There are, of course, certain elements of the interior that have been tweaked by Alpina. The steering wheel, for instance, is thin and trimmed in alcantara, rather than the much thicker BMW M-Sport one.

There's a leather-trimmed dash too, though on our test car, this was a hefty £1,075 option. Blue and green stitching is used throughout the cabin, while a numbered metal plaque makes you fully aware – if you weren't already – that you're driving something a little bit special.

Legroom

Despite having seating for four, the B4 is not a fully-fledged four-seater, rather a 2+2. The rear seats would be fine for children, but adults are going to find it a bit of a squeeze.

Up front, however, there's plenty of room. Legroom is decent and there's plenty of space for bottles and other items. Two large cup holders are useful, especially on hot days with the roof down. However, that roof does affect practicality. If you fold it away, you have to lower the luggage cover in the boot, heavily compromising space. It's a small thing, but users looking to lower the roof often may find it annoying.

Make no question about it, the B4 Biturbo is quick. Putting in 410bhp and 600Nm torque, it can reach 62mph in 4.5 seconds and goes on to 187mph. However, the car's approach to those figures isn't as aggressive as you might think. Powered through an eight-speed ZF auto the Alpina waits up to speed in a more relaxing fashion than the bodykit would allow you to imagine. That exhaust isn't intrusive, giving a lovely, mechanical note under heavy acceleration.

Alpina makes sure to thoroughly change the suspension on any car it makes, and the B4 is no different. The wheels, though wearing 245/30 section tyres, bear no impact on the car's ride. In fact, you'd be hard-pressed to find a car that deals better with bumps in the road one. It is firm without jarring, which is just what you want in a convertible. This is bettered by placing the car in comfort mode. Up and running, the B4 is easy to drive quickly, with the vast amount of torque on offer making change of pace quick and effortless. It also means it is relaxing to drive on the motorway too.

The B4's steering is also excellent, helped no doubt by the thin-rimmed wheel. Alpina still curiously chooses to use buttons mounted behind the wheel rather than paddle shifters, which is one thing we'd change. That ZF gearbox still provides excellent shifts time after time, though. One annoyance was the start-stop system, which had a habit of cutting in incredibly early, and then starting again with a jolt.

Prices start at £62,950. Our test car, fitted with options such as adaptive headlights and Merino leather, came in at £72,010. Make no mistake, this Alpina is not cheap. For that money though, you get a level of subtlety that is hard to describe. Given the performance available, the car's price makes sense. When you also take into account the bespoke nature of the car's suspension and powertrain, as well as the interior, then it begins to look like good value.

If you're looking to stand out from the crowd, the Alpina perhaps isn't the best choice. If, however, you fancy driving a car that has understated presence hiding a vast amount of performance, the B4 Biturbo may well be for you.

Swedish vibes and clean lines in the V90

By Ian Donaldson

GOODNESS, hasn't Volvo changed in the six years since the Chinese took control, most obviously seen in a very un-Swedish outward display of confidence in their cars.

Once upon a time, even right into the age when Ford made the big decisions, you would have heard how safe and sensible were the cars designed in Gothenburg.

A little dull, perhaps, but so, so appealing to the inner accountant and responsible granddad in potential buyers.

They are still safe today – safer than ever, in fact, with the big XC90 SUV emerging as the safest car ever to be crashed on purpose in the respected EuroNCAP tests.

The next new Volvo along is the V90 estate and S90 saloon, tested here and both built on the same underpinnings that made the XC90 such a star performer in the safety tests.

They're sensible too, with enough room in the rear for trio of adults and luggage space that varies from generous (500 litres in the S90) to luxury van-like (560 litres) in the V90, even before you pop the split rear seats flat.

But no Volvo before has even been introduced with a graph showing it roaring away from the lights ahead of its competitors, some of them with bigger and more brutish engines doing the work.

Showcase

That point was made to both showcase the surprising power from the Volvo's 2.0 litre diesel engines (the firm has pledged never to go larger) and the clever technology on one of them that gives a boost away from the line.

That's called PowerPulse and pumps a high pressure puff of air into the turbocharger at low revs to smooth the delay you otherwise find between ordering full power and it arriving that is a downside of turbo'd motors.

Most S/V90 models won't actually have the instant turbo effect, making do with a less powerful version of the same diesel engine (D4 versus D5) that is going to be much the most popular power unit across the new range, with the D5 taking 20 per cent and the part-electric plug-in hybrid T8 Twin Engine a niche 10 per cent when it arrives next year.

Prices start at 32,555 for an S90 saloon in D4 (190hp) Momentum trim, moving up to £41,555 for an S90 D5 Momentum with all-wheel drive and a 235hp engine.

Head for a posher Inscription version and you add £3,000 and £2,500 respectively to the bottom line. Fancy an estate – most will – and there's an easily remembered £2,000 price hike across the board.

Handsome

However much you spend on the newcomer it results in a car that looks notably handsome, with uncluttered lines giving off very Swedish vibes. Same goes for the interior, with matt wood flashes in some versions adding to the Scandi furniture effect, even if some of the plastics on the dash felt a bit ungiving.

Buy the least expensive of the newcomers and you won't feel shortchanged.

Standard kit includes all the obvious bits – sat nav, climate control, big alloy wheels, heated front seats, power boot of tailgate and leather trim.

It also feels comfortable, with typically well shaped seats and a ride that stays the right side of too-firm, if feeling modestly bouncy at times.

You can order in a so-called dynamic mode at the twist and push of a knurled wheel between the front seats, but this simply makes the steering heavier, even if the auto gear-box does then change more enthusiastically.

Drive it in comfort mode and you will still find plenty of performance, even in D4 guise (but the big surprise will come when you check the fuel consumption, with an impressive 52mpg showing after a thorough test. That might be considered as practical as can be.

How very Volvo.

Five of the best cars for dog owners to carry their pooches

For many families in the UK, children aren't the only thing that they're going to be carting around in the back of the car. More often than not, they'll want to bring the family dog along with them.

After all, what's the point of going on a family road trip if you can't bring man's best friends along too? We've selected five of the best cars for dog owners.

JAGUAR F-PACE
The F-Pace is the first ever SUV that Jaguar has made, and boy is it a pretty car. Thanks to a large 650-litre boot, there is plenty of room for a decent-sized dog, as well as the rest of the family, too. The boot opens wide, meaning it should be more than easy for your four-legged friend to jump on board. It also has a reversible boot floor that is carpeted on one side and rubber on the other, which is certainly a nice touch if your dog likes to roll around in the mud on a regular basis...

BMW 5 SERIES TOURING
Not only are BMWs supposedly the ultimate driving machines, in estate guise, they also make for incredibly practical cars. With 560 litres of space on offer, your dog will be able to travel in both comfort and style. As this car doesn't sit as high as an SUV, your pooch will be able to jump in and out of the boot that much easier. The tailgate also features something called a "shopping chute", which lets you open the boot window so you can load any other dog associated bits and pieces into the car without running the risk of your dog making a run for it.

SKODA SUPERB ESTATE
If a 5 Series Touring is slightly out of your price bracket, the Skoda Superb Estate makes a great alternative. Not only is it significantly cheaper, it also boasts a massive 660-litre boot, which can be increased to 1,950 litres by folding the rear seats down. Even if you were the proud owner of a Great Dane, the big Skoda should be more than capable of accommodating your dog.

RANGE ROVER
For those who can afford it, a Range Rover really is the ideal car for dog owners. Not can it access even the most remote dog walking location thanks to its supreme off-roading abilities, it will also take you and your dog to said location in extreme comfort. Its boot offers up to 2,030 litres of space with the rear seats folded down, and thanks to a splitting tailgate, you even have somewhere to sit and watch your dogs run around from. While the splitting tailgate might make it easier for larger dogs to climb on board, beware that the car's height may mean shorter dogs will have to be given a leg-up.

CITROEN C4 CACTUS
If you're after a more rugged offering, take a look at the Citroen C4 Cactus. With prices starting at just under £13,000, the Cactus makes for a funky and affordable alternative to the more expensive and serious cars included on this list. Its fairly Spartan interior should be easy to clean once the dogs are out, and its raised ride height mean it will be able to reach those slightly more remote dog-walking locations.

New Micra redefined, audacious and unique

Nissan's Micra Gen5, unveiled at the 2016 Paris Motor Show, is a complete redefinition of what Micra means ... and is as audacious as it is revolutionary.

Targeted for Europe, the world's largest hatchback market, the Micra Gen5 is styled to turn heads, with a dramatic body length-defining character line. It is lower, wider and longer than its predecessors and has more interior space. It also has advanced new downsized turbo drivetrains, an agile chassis and a full complement of innovative safety features.

Remaining faithful to the Sway Concept unveiled at the 2015 Geneva Motor Show, the Micra Gen5 fully embodies Nissan's latest design language with signature design cues and emotional body sculpting. Design cues include the distinctive V-motion grille, from where the sharp-edged character line runs through to the rear end, boomerang-shaped lights, and the floating roof – another Nissan design signature – that creates an airy feeling. Other features include rear door handles hidden in the C-pillars and an extended roofline that incorporates a spoiler, benefiting the car's aerodynamic performance and aesthetics.

The dramatic looks are matched by a selection of 10 sophisticated and vivid exterior colours, including Energy Orange. Additional exterior and interior personalisation options allow for the creation of 125 different variations, enabling owners to stamp their own style on their new Micra.

Much attention has been paid to driver comfort, with a lower driving position for a more secure driving feel. It's easy for all drivers to achieve the perfect driving position thanks to greater seat adjustment, the fully adjustable steering wheel and the optimal positioning of the pedals and shift lever. The car's extended width and wheelbase means cabin space is among the best in class. The gliding-wing shaped dashboard gives the cabin a light, sleek and spacious impression.

Extensive

This Micra Gen5 is the first in Nissan's B-segment line-up to offer such an extensive set of advanced safety features, available across all grades, bringing Nissan Intelligent Driving to life. Usually found in larger cars, available technologies include Lane Departure Prevention, a segment first. Intelligent Emergency Braking with pedestrian recognition, a first for Nissan vehicles in Europe, as well as Intelligent Around View Monitor, Traffic Sign Recognition, High Beam Assist and Blind Spot Warning. Together, these advanced safety features are the building blocks for Autonomous Driving and are an integral part of Nissan Intelligent Mobility.

An exclusive feature of Micra Gen5 is the all-new six-speaker Bose® Personal® sound system, developed through close collaboration with Nissan. This first-of-its-kind sound system is optimised for the driver, with two Bose Ultra-Nearfield™ speakers, combined with Bose PersonalSpace™ Virtual Audio Technology, built into the driver seat headrest for a remarkably immersive listening experience. Additional passengers benefit from new Bose Super65 speakers in each of the front doors, producing powerful low-note performance, and tweeters in each A-pillar for sonic clarity.

Micra Gen5 comes with a 7-inch full colour central display, providing access to the audio system, satellite navigation, mobile phone, downloadable apps and Siri voice control via Apple CarPlay.

Micra Gen5 features include Active Ride Control for enhanced ride comfort, and Active Trace Control for reduced understeer and sharper handling – combining driver enjoyment and reassurance – innovations only available on Nissan's Qashqai and X-Trail until now. A new brushless electric power steering system – for greater steering feel and response – is also available.

Much attention has been paid to reducing noise in the cabin. Improvements include outstanding noise insulation and optimisation of the car's aerodynamic performance. Exceptional aero efficiency has been achieved thanks to the combined roof and side spoiler. As a result, the new Micra has achieved a Cd of 0.29 – top level for a hatchback.

Engine efficiency has also been a key objective in the development of the Micra Gen5. At launch, the car will offer the choice of a 0.9-litre turbocharged three-cylinder petrol engine and a 1.5-litre diesel, both developing 90hp. The range will be joined soon after by a naturally aspirated 73hp 1.0-litre petrol engine. These engines, together with efficient aerodynamics, mark another step forward in Nissan Intelligent Power.

The Micra Gen5 will revolutionise customer expectations in the B-segment by introducing a unique blend of striking design, new, intuitive technology and confident, agile performance. Its striking design and bold colour options will make it stand out from the crowd, while its interior roominess and advanced features will appeal to buyers looking for more from their B-segment hatchback, or to those downsizing.

The new Nissan Micra will be built in Europe at the Renault plant in Flins, France, as part of the Renault Nissan Alliance. Sales will start in Europe from March 2017.

Straight to the top of the class for Touran

By John Griffiths

People carriers may lack the glamour or fashionable appeal of some genres of car, which for the present seems to be the SUV, or sports utility vehicle.

But where they have the edge over big saloons, hatchbacks and yes, even the SUV, is for sheer practicality: the flexibility to easily accommodate up to seven people or a van load of cargo, or a combination of both.

So Volkswagen has reason to brag that its new Touran went straight to the top of the class by winning the hotly contested 'best MPV' title in this year's What Car? Awards.

VW has plenty of experience of multi-purpose vehicles, of course. The Touran, now in its 14th year, sits between the more recent Golf SV and its largest MPV, the full-size Sharan.

The new model builds on core strengths of space, multi-adjustable seats for maximum flexibility, and the driveability of a family hatchback. Now it's bigger, better equipped with a more premium feel to the cabin. It's more aerodynamic and lighter, which with a range of new petrol and diesel engines means new Touran is leaner and greener, too.

VW expects, naturally, the biggest selling version to be powered by the improved 115PS, 1.6 litre diesel which achieved almost 70mpg in official tests. But those who prefer petrol are in for a surprise with the option of two superb new, small capacity petrol units, turbocharged for more power and, crucially, more torque which means smoother, more relaxed progress. There's a 1.4 litre TSI with 150bhp, and the impressive 1.2 litre version powering the test car, a midrange SE spec model costing £23,575 on the road.

I confess that, even though I'm familiar with VW TSI engines, on first seeing the specification, I wasn't looking forward to driving a big seven-seater with a mere 1,200cc under the bonnet. But what a surprise! This mighty atom of an engine produces 110PS of power and 175Nm of torque and is actually marginally quicker off the mark than its 1.6 diesel stablemate at 11.3 seconds from a standstill to 62mph.

But sprint performance is no real standard to judge by in this class. Unlike a traditional petrol engine, the TSI's turbo means maximum pulling power is available from just 1,400rpm, barely above tickover, so it pulls sweetly and smoothly across a range of engine speeds and gear positions. It makes the drive far more relaxed, and it's exceptionally quiet, too, adding to the upmarket feel created by the upgraded cabin trim.

The official fuel average is 52.3mpg, and I managed to get remarkably close to that (51.4) on a 200-mile trip taking in town traffic, motorway and A-road driving. It managed 48mpg over a series of local journeys, too.

Flexibility

But the real selling point for an MPV over other types of car is space and flexibility, and the Touran excels in both. The new model is longer and mm wider, with a longer wheelbase, and all of this additional space is used to create more space in the cabin. Seven seats are standard, with the rear pair capable of being individually folded flat into the floor to juggle between the needs of people and cargo. The centre three seats also fold and are easy to slide forward and backwards. Depending on which configuration (folding anything from one to five seats) you have from 137 to a van-like 1,847 litres of boot space. For a holiday with seven people, the Touran has roof rails for their luggage.

The centre touch screen control is fully compatible with smartphone apps, and also has 'cam-connect' so that parents can use a dashcam to monitor little ones in the back. The in-car microphone, coupled to the audio system, means you won't need to shout at those in the back, either.

The test car was an 'SE' version, the second of four trim levels available. It came with the full range of safety systems, including seven airbags, front assist, city braking and stability programme, plus the standard seven seats and roof rails. The audio system, including DAB radio and CD player, has full multi-device connectivity to help keep passengers occupied. Rain sensing wipers, automatic headlights, air conditioning, and alloy wheels are also on the list.

There's a digital trip computer in the instrument cluster, plus fingertip controls on the wheel for audio, handsfree phone and speed limiter. The adaptive cruise control uses sensors to maintain your distance from traffic in front.

The Touran has room for seven of the tallest passengers, but doesn't feel big to drive like some van-based MPVs of old: indeed it feels as light and agile as its cousin the Golf.

It's still instantly recognisable as a Touran, but it has lost some of the boxy looks of the previous generation. VW has succeeded in giving the model and more upmarket look and feel, without sacrificing any of the flexibility and practicality.

As for running costs, the 1.2TSI tested car has a low group 11E insurance rating while its CO2 rating (on which

Mom

God made a wonderful
Mother,
a Mother who never grows old.

He made her smile of the sunshine, and He moulded her heart of pure gold.

In her eyes He placed bright shining stars, in her cheeks fair roses you see.

God made a wonderful
Mother,
and He gave that dear Mother to me.

Love you always.

ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984 (AS AMENDED) ROAD TRAFFIC (TEMPORARY RESTRICTIONS) ACT 1991
A460 HORSE FAIR, RUGELEY
DIVISION OF VEHICULAR TRAFFIC
WHARF ROAD ONTO A460 BRERETON ROAD, RUGELEY

NOTICE is hereby given that the Staffordshire County Council intend, not less than seven days from the date of this Notice, to make an Order the effect of which will be to prohibit any vehicle from proceeding in that length of A460 Horse Fair, Rugeley between its junctions with Wharf Road and A513 Armitage Road unless the vehicle is being used in connection with the works. Limited vehicular access to frontages will be available but through traffic will not be permitted.

The preferred alternative route for traffic will be available via A460 Brereton Road, A460 Main Road, A460 Brereton Hill, A51, B5013 Station Road, B5013 Anson Street, B5013 Elmore Lane, A460 Horse Fair and vice versa.

Throughout the duration of this Order it will be necessary to temporarily suspend the left turn only order from Wharf Road onto A460 Brereton Road.

The Order will come into operation on 3 November 2016 and the said works will commence on or as near as practicable to that date (taking place nightly between the hours of 23:00 and 06:00). It is anticipated that the works will be completed by 5 November 2016.

The Order will remain in force for a period of 18 months or until the railway bridge guttering repair works, which it is proposed to carry out on or near the road, have been completed, whichever is the earlier.

SLITTING MILL ROAD, RUGELEY
DIVISION OF VEHICULAR TRAFFIC

NOTICE is hereby given that the Staffordshire County Council intend, not less than seven days from the date of this Notice, to make an Order the effect of which will be to prohibit any vehicle from proceeding in that length of Slitting Mill Road, Rugeley so much as passes by and is in the direct vicinity of the railway bridge for a distance of 20 metres either side unless the vehicle is being used in connection with the works; or is being used for police, fire brigade or ambulance purposes. There will be a Banksman on site to see pedestrians through.

The preferred alternative route for traffic will be available via Slitting Mill Road, Penkridge Bank Road, Hagley Road, A460 Western Springs Road, A460 Sandy Lane, A460 Hednesford Road and vice versa.

The Order will come into operation at 09:00 on 3 November 2016, and the said works will commence on or as near as practicable to that date. It is anticipated that the works will be completed by 17:00 on the same day.

The Order will remain in force for a period of 18 months or until the railway bridge examination works, which it is proposed to carry out on or near the road, have been completed, whichever is the earlier.

Bob and Kevin, with, back, Cameron Darby, Dilson Santos, coach Gary Tomlinson, Ellis Clifton and Ashton Jay Pugh

Ellis Clifton is put through his paces at Lions Boxing Club by coach Kev Dillon

Pride of Lions Bob helps GB to roar at Olympics

A BLACK COUNTRY voice has been helping Team GB's boxers reach the gold standard for quite some time and it was no different during Rio 2016.

Dudley's Bob Dillon serves as the GB squad's lead podium potential coach and worked with the boxers again this year. He cut short his trip to return home for an open day at the gym he founded, Lions Boxing Club in Brierley Hill, and to join his wife Julie for her 60th birthday celebrations.

In Rio, Joshua Buatsi secured GB's first boxing medal, a bronze, after a points defeat to Kazakhstan's Adilbek Niyazymbetov.

Joe Joyce followed with a silver in the super heavyweight category and Nicola Adams became a double gold medalist after repeating her triumph from London 2012.

With GB reaching its target of leaving Brazil with three medals, Dillon can take his share of the credit.

Buatsi, Joyce and Adams all came through his boxing programme, as did most of their immediate predecessors who starred at the Olympics.

Champion

He's close to Anthony Joshua, who turned pro to become a world champion after going all of the way at London 2012. He also worked Luke Campbell, who won gold and then turned over to the pro ranks.

James DeGale, who went to Beijing 2008, was another protege who joined the paid game, and went on to become the first British Olympic gold medalist to win a world boxing title.

Dillon, aged 59, is now back full time at the English Institute of Sport in Sheffield. New prospects need to be brought into the system and prepared for the European and World Championships, with the long-term focus towards Tokyo 2020. "We've pretty much operated with the thinking of those that medal will turn pro. It's rare that doesn't come to pass," he said.

SPORTING MEMORIES

By Craig Brich

"It's hard what we do, but that's boxing. It breaks people more than any other sport."

"Then you've got those that we believed would do very well in the Olympics and haven't, for whatever reason. Sometimes, it's just down to being on the wrong side of a bad decision.

"We've got to pick them up and bring them on again so, hopefully, they get it right next time. You only get so many chances.

"It's my job to help bring through young boxers and that's where a lot of our attention will be going.

"We look at some youth boxers, so our age range is 17-18 up to about 40, which is the senior limit. Audley Harrison was 29 when he went to the Sydney Olympics in 2000.

"It's hard what we do, but that's boxing. It breaks people more than any other sport. Coming here doesn't suit everybody, but it's what you need to do to get to the top."

Dillon is a three-star AIBA boxing coach and has been employed full-time at the EIS for six years, having previously worked part-time for GB since 1999.

One Black Country cohort now on the fighting team is Darlaston's Benjamin Whittaker, 19, who was picked for the podium squad in May.

None of Dillon's fighters at club level have ever represented GB, despite the Lions alumni containing a host of national champions and internationals.

Andrew Price, James Price, Luke Richards, Ricky Summers and Connor Jones all featured for England, but no further. Dillon still rates Jones and the late Thomas Hickinbottom – who tragically died aged 14 in 2003 after a freak road accident – among the most talented boxers he's seen first-hand.

He speaks from a lifetime of experience in the game which started when he was 11, at Kinver and then Warley Boxing Club.

He later became head coach for Warley before starting Lions in 2000, which continues to be a family-run establishment.

Corner

Julie is treasurer and also an accredited judge while son Kevin, 32, is a trainer. Then there's the imposing figure of head coach John Shakespeare, who reached a national final himself boxing for Warley in the 1987 senior ABA competition.

Dillon can still work the corner at club level and does so for Lions members when his obligations allow. He gave a speech at the open day about what it takes to succeed in all areas of boxing.

He said: "Since the start of 2015, I've been to 18 different countries with my job and I wouldn't have it any other way."

"I've been away with work a lot and it's vital I've had the support of family. I'll be having a go at Tokyo and carrying on for as long as my heart is in it."

"You haven't got to be fight to be a part of something in this sport. You can contribute in so many different ways. At the club, most of the experienced boxers are also coaching and bringing the lads on."

"Sticking together is the way to succeed."

Bob Dillon has been helping GB to success at Olympic Games

Cannock yet to get a win this season

Doncaster 4 Cannock Men's 1sts 1
CANNOCK are still searching for the first win of the hockey season. Chris Beck scored a late consolation, and thoughts now turn to the visit of Preston on Sunday (2pm).

Cannock 5th 1 Bridgnorth 5ths 1
The weekend began with a frustrating draw for the 5ths, who are targeting promotion. Cannock made the breakthrough in the second half but gave Bridgnorth a way back five minutes later.

Cannock 3rds 6 Rugby & E Warwick 2
Tom Widdowson's 3rds went two goals ahead inside the first 10 minutes. However, they took their foot off the gas and allowed the visitors to level.

But after that setback, Cannock went on to dominate and earn all three points.

Stourport 2 Cannock 2nds 2
Away from Chase Park, Cannock 2nds faced an uphill battle from the beginning with only 11 players due to drop-outs and injuries. Ben Balcombe stepped up to give Cannock a spare player and performed admirably. Goals from Richard Parker and Hamish McKittrick should have been enough but Cannock ended up with a second successive score draw.

Rugby & E Warwick 4 Cannock 4ths 2
A depleted fourth team, under new leader Raff Moscatiello, battled hard but silly errors saw them two goals down early on. Nevertheless, Cannock fought back and drew level thanks to goals from George Collins and Nathan Lotfhouse but Dave Wigg took a ball to the forehead and this had a massive impact on the game as Cannock tired.

Newport 2 Cannock 6ths 2
A mixed team lined up at Lilleshall and two goals from Bruce Alcock gave Cannock a draw in an enjoyable game.

Cannock Badgers lost 1-0 at Ashby, while Cannock 2nds lost 8-1 in their cup tie at Loughborough.

Returning skipper inspires Hayes to a home triumph

Heath Hayes 3 Studley 0
HAYES were given a boost with the return of skipper Jack Arrowsmith after his recovery from stomach surgery.

Joe Hartshorne gave the home side a third-minute lead, latching onto an underhit back pass. Hayes then lost midfielder Liam Degville on the hour with a thigh injury, but his replacement, 17-year-old Connor Haddaway, had an immediate impact by playing a defence-splitting pass to Hartshorne whose cross was powered home by Jack Jones.

Hartshorne made the game safe with a fine volley before hitting the bar.

Heath Hayes 4 Lye Town 2 (AET)
Lye went ahead in the 34th minute of this JW Hunt Cup clash and doubled their lead three minutes later. Ryan Burns pulled one back for Hayes on 61.

As tempers frayed, Lye's Alex Dallison was shown a second yellow with seven minutes left, and within a minute, Heath Hayes were level – a cross from the right headed home by Ryan Goodwin.

Joe Hartshorne gave Hayes the lead in the 101st minute, and three minutes later, Rhys Horton sealed the win.

Ex-Walsall star Martin seeks sponsors

Martin O'Connor with members of the academy

FORMER Walsall and Birmingham City captain Martin O'Connor is looking to boost his football and education academy by getting sponsorship from businesses.

The Martin O'Connor Education & Football Academy, which is based at Norton Canes High School, was set up last year and has 35 potential players on its books.

It has recently bought a 17-seat minibus to take players and staff to and from games.

Mr O'Connor, who lives in Pelsall, said: "We have got 35 guys, all 16 to 18.

"We coach them in the morning, and then they do work in the afternoon. It is all sport-related, and we are in a competitive league."

His team finished third in the Under-19 Alliance league, but Mr O'Connor said he was hoping to finish higher.

The 48-year-old added: "We did well last year, so this year we are looking to beat that." For more information, visit martin-oconnor.com or email him on moc@mocefa.co.uk

Lions devour points after long journey

Clee Hill 14 Cannock 15

CANNOCK Lions came home with another victory on the road. The long car journey to Clee Hill and the delay in clubhouse being opened to allow the warm-up routine to go as it usually would wasn't a great start to the day.

It did not get much better when the hosts went 7-0 up. But Jordan Pincombe kicked a penalty, and Cannock led at half-time when the same player converted Joe Brooke's try.

Pincombe added to the score with a try after the break but was unlucky not to score the conversion.

The last 10 minutes were nervy as Clee Hill scored a controversial try, which they then converted, but they missed the chance to win as they kicked a late penalty wide.

Cleobury Mortimer 43 Burntwood 10
BURNWOOD'S winning start to the season came to an abrupt halt. Three tries down going into the second quarter, they battled back to win their fair share of possession and territory but endured an off day in attack.

In contrast, the hosts soaked up the pressure and hit Burntwood on the break to run in seven tries.

Facing a 17 point deficit so early in the game, Dan Garrity crossed in the corner, but Cleobury were able to record a bonus point try for a 22-5 half-time advantage.

The hosts moved further ahead five minutes into the second period with a try and conversion.

Then, with their first venture into the opposition half for 15 minutes, the hosts added to their score with another try and conversion.

Luke Rookyard got Burntwood back on the scoresheet on 67 minutes, but Cleobury completed the scoring with a try converted under the posts.

Burntwood 2nds/3rds faced Spartans 4ths at The Sportsway and won 22-0.

United in control with goals salvo

Cannock United 4 Hilton Harriers 2
CANNOCK pulled out all the stops, bouncing back from a dismal display to beat Hilton. The home side controlled the first half and looked more and more comfortable as the game went on.

Josh Bradley headed home a precisely delivered Ryan Shoemark corner.

The second half saw much of the same from Cannock, but Sam Marfin equalised from the spot on 57 minutes after a clumsy challenge by Jack Hames.

Grant McCarthy netted on 62 and 64 minutes before Tom Kneller converted a spot kick after 69 minutes. Hilton pulled one back just before full-time.

WIN FOLLOWS DERBY BLOW

Hednesford Town 3 Corby 0
HEDNESFORD Town returned to winning ways in the league with a convincing 3-0 victory over rock bottom Corby Town on Monday night.

After dominating possession in the opening exchanges, it was no surprise when Hednesford took the lead in the 20th minute through former Corby man Ashley Sammons' 25 yard effort.

The home side should have doubled their lead in the 64th minute but Danny Glover's penalty was saved by Monty Parkes.

Any nerves were eased in the 72nd minute when Carline rose highest to head home from a corner. A third goal followed seven minutes from time as Jim Mutton headed in his first goal for the club from six yards out.

Rushall Olympic 2 Hednesford Town 1
SEVEN miles apart and separated only by one place and single point, it was the Pies who came away with the bragging rights after this derby clash.

It's 22 years since the Pitmen last managed to secure a victory at Dales Lane. And John Allen's side extended their home hoodoo thanks to a late piece of magic from substitute Stan Mugisha.

There were three minutes remaining when the pacey forward latched on to a long ball forward. A rush of blood to the head saw Hednesford keeper Dan Crane charge into a race he didn't need to enter – and Mugisha took it round him to slot home from a tight angle.

Hednesford took the lead when George Carline rose highest to powerfully head home Danny Glover's cross.

It took Rushall just three minutes of the second half to get themselves back on terms as Alex Reid nodded home his 11th of the campaign.

The Pitmen entertain Blyth Spartans at Saturday. Kick off is at 3pm.

Carlton 3 Chasetown 1
CARLTON Town dumped Chasetown out of the FA Trophy at the preliminary round stage.

Two goals from Niall Davie gave Carlton a two-goal cushion before Mitchell Piggott lobbied over the keeper for a reply. Jake Wholey tapped in a third in stoppage time.

Scholars travel to Northwich Victoria on Saturday.

Fans' £300 for air ambulance

Pitman Pete hands over a cheque to Katie West watched by Steve Williams

HEDNESFORD Town FC Supporters Association has handed over a donation of more than £300 to the Midlands Air Ambulance.

Club mascot Pitman Pete handed over the cheque for £305.57 during the half-time interval at the recent match against Mickleover Sports to Katie West, Staffordshire fundraising manager, with the supporters' association's Steve Williams in support.

The cash was raised by donations made by supporters and members of the local community on August 27 when Keys Park hosted the I am Team GB event in conjunction with the home game against Whitley.

Katie said she was thrilled by the response to the collection – and thanked the fans for their generosity.

Meanwhile, fans have snapped up tickets for England and Manchester United legend Bryan Robson's talk at Keys park on October 27 starting at 7.30pm.

The ex-Albion captain will recall the time his high-flying Middlesbrough side were shook by Hednesford in a dramatic 4th round FA Cup tie at the Riverside stadium, which Boro won 3-2 en route to the final.

He will be interviewed by BBC radio presenter Paul Gough, with audience members also getting the chance to ask questions about his career.
